ANYONE CAN PLAY. The Granite City Council has passed a new ordinance regulating video and pinball machines with an amendment abolishing the age limit of users of the amusement machines. "Pac-Man," shown above, is one of the more popular video games. Elimination of the age limit on pool players also is under consideration by the council.

Cold grips area

By BILL WINTER and DONNA KIMBRO

Numbing cold combined with strong winds chilled the Quad-City area Saturday and Sunday and closed all local public and parochial schools today.

Classes may resume tomorrow due to the arrival of slightly less frigid temperatures today. But the community, the Midwest and much of the nation remain in the grip of a cold wave of unusual intensity.

Major highways leading into the Chicago area were closed part of the day on Sunday as snow blanketed the upper two-thirds of Illinois.

Despite a record low reading of fifteen degrees below zero Fahrenheit, recorded here Sunday morning—with a wind-chill index of minus-40—many Quad-City church services proceeded on schedule and there was an almost-normal level of activity throughout the community.

Televised professional football championship games offered a welcome excuse for many to remain indoors, however, and icy conditions at the Cincinnati game provided a reminder of the nearly identical weather here.

No major problems occurred locally regarding natural gas service and electricity, although a power line was reported down at 6:15 p.m. Sunday in the 4300 block of Kirkpatrick Homes. In the Wood River area, about 700 families were without electric power for about two hours Sunday, and numerous outages were reported in Missouri. Special centers were set up to aid those without heat in St. Louis and St. Louis County.

Mercury plunges to -15°

The Illinois-American Water Co. reported no problems with water mains, but numerous water lines froze in the Quad-Cities.

Use of hair dryers to blow warm air on water pipes, automobile locks and residential door locks offered the greatest chance for successful thawing efforts yesterday. Hot water proved ineffective because it froze so rapidly. Joe Obernueffernann, 82, of 1932 S. Keen St., Madison, was found in his home Friday morning unconscious and on the verge of freezing to death, guarded by two large dogs.

Madison County sheriff's deputies had to get someone to remove the dogs before an ambulance crew could enter a 6x6-foot room to reach the elderly man.

Burners on a stove were the only source of heat and Obernueffernann was found to have suffered hypothermia. He was unconscious and barely breathing, lying atop a stack of old clothes.

A tracheotomy was performed at the scene to help him breathe and he then was rushed to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he was admitted to the intensive care unit at 9:50 a.m. Friday.

County authorities said Obernueffernann apparently fell and struck his head. There was a small laceration evident when emergency medical technicians arrived at his home.

Council drops age limit for pinball

By GEORGEANN MCGEE

of the Press-Record

The Granite City Council has lifted age restraints banning minors from operating pinball and video game machines after Police Chief Ronald Veizer said the age restriction was unnecessary and unenforceable.

A law abolishing the age limits for pool table players also is expected to reach the council floor soon. Veizer said that, in the past, some charges had been made by the Granite City Police Department against minors using pinball machines, but the attitude of the court had been to ignore the matter.

"The court did not view a violation as 'a giant offense,' the police chief said. As a result, he said, officers here did not continue to make arrests.

Veizer said an age limit is particularly unenforceable now with the growing use of electronic game machines in area stores. However, he thinks the new games are more closely supervised—decreasing the possibility of gambling or drug-related activities.

Owners have "a lot of money" invested in electronic games and keep a close watch on the players, according to Veizer.

He said a number of aldermen consulted with him before the voting to delete the age requirement.

The owner of the Galaxy Arcade, 3659 N. Main St., said the Granite City Council made it a condition of his city business license that he open for business only after school is dismissed for the day and to close promptly at 11 p.m.

His business has been successful enough to include immediate plans for expansion.

The amendment deleting age restrictions was approved on a 13-0 vote prior to a similar vote by the council giving the city new regulations for certain types of the coin-operated devices.

The Automatic Amusement Devices Ordinance applies to coin or token machines operated for amusement or skill, but does not regulate juke boxes or vending machines. Preliminary discussions by the ordinance committee had concerned updating those ordinances as well.

Delay in state aid could cost GC schools $840,000

By BILL WINTER

of the Press-Record

A change in the timing of state payments could create a $1 million-plus financial problem for Quad-City area schools in June 1982, officials said Friday.

In the Granite City school system alone, $840,000 is involved; the statewide figure is $127 million.

Instead of $1,880,000 being forwarded to Granite City District Nine in June, as is currently scheduled, $840,000 would arrive that month and $840,000 would be scheduled for July 1982, after the start of the new state fiscal year (and school districts' fiscal year, as well).

The "bookkeeping change" proposed by the state administration will not occur unless the General Assembly approves it, and educators throughout Illinois are planning to ask legislators to block the plan.

"It would occur at the exact time when our funds are in shortest supply. It clearly would aggravate our cash flow problem, probably causing an increase in our tax anticipation warrants," Granite City Sup. B. J. Davis told the Press-Record.

A Springfield survey of schools throughout the state revealed that "some officials fear the money may be lost, not just delayed a month. They add that, even if the aid is made up later, the delay would still cause serious financial headaches for most districts."

The State Board of Education said the amounts delayed would include $41 million in Chicago, $2 million in Rockford, $1,600,000 in Elgin, $1,100,000 in Decatur, $1 million in Peoria, $692,000 in Alton, $600,000 in Champaign-Urbana, $576,000 in Belleville, $556,000 in Springfield, $343,000 in Mount Vernon and $197,000 in Carbondale.

When he proposed the change in December, Gov. James R. Thompson described it as minor. However, large sums are involved; annual state aid exceeds $1½ billion (to more than 1,000 districts) and any alteration of its flow causes "shock waves."

After the proposal was assailed by the Illinois Association of School Boards last week, Arthur Quesenberry, deputy governor, said he hoped the dispute was only a misunderstanding over exactly what had been suggested.

Normally, the state treasury transfers $127 million monthly, in two equal semi-monthly payments of $63½ million.

The $127 million is the monthly total for August through May, and there is a double amount of nearly $256 million in June, with none in July. The fiscal year ends on June 30.

The governor wants to forward $127 million in June and $127 million in July. After "a couple of years" of this, the state could revert to the practice of making double school aid payments each June, Thompson related.

State Budget Director Robert Mandeville said the state has its own cash flow difficulty in maintaining an adequate day-to-day reserve and income-outgo balance.

He noted that the federal government is talking of delaying $78 million the state expects in June, and that the state treasury already has fallen to what he regards as a "dangerously low" level due to the impact of recession and unemployment on tax receipts.

Educators in general respond that even a few weeks' delay would alter by one-twelfth the state revenue their districts receive in the 1981-82 fiscal year. Alton Sup. Robert J. Lynn said, "This would be difficult, if not impossible, to absorb."

Mandeville said the delayed money would still be credited to the state's budget for this fiscal year.

He conceded that many districts would have to pay considerable interest to borrow the equivalent amount of money, even if for only the one-month period.

But he said the state probably would pay the districts about $12,500 per $1 million to offset this, at an estimated 15 percent annual rate. "They will not lose any money," he asserted.

Rate changes likely in sale of Illinois Bell

Illinois Bell Telephone customers here will have to wait a while before they find out if an agreement between American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T) and the Justice Department will increase, or possibly double, rates now charged for local calls.

The announcement of the future sale of Illinois Bell and possible rate increase comes as Granite City residents prepare for an additional five-percent sales tax on their telephone bills to raise funds for a city budget deficit of capital expenditure funds and facing a projected $654,000 deficit at the end of the year.

(An Illinois Bell rate increase already is pending before the Illinois Commerce and will apparently not be affected by the settlement. Any new rates increased under the new ownership will also have to be approved by state public utility commission.)

Helen Burner, manager of the area Resident Service Area for Illinois Bell here, said the effect of the federal settlement, which will require AT&T to sell regional subsidiaries within 18 months, will take "nearly two years" to be felt locally. She said, however, that AT&T will have to file plans for their divestiture within six months. She said no changes will take place at the present.

The agreement will put AT&T out of the local call business, but the change is not expected to affect the status of employees, said Ms. Burner. She said the change came about "quickly," but an official explanation of the change by the company to its employees seems to have curbed any employee concern about their status.

William Weiss, president of Illinois Bell, stated that, if employee benefits, including pensions and union contracts will remain unaffected. Illinois Bell is AT&T's seventh-largest local subsidiary and employs more than 37,000 residents in the state.

Besides the speculation that local service rates may go up, there also is the question of whether or not the change could bring long distance rates down. The long-distance network will remain a part of AT&T. Long-distance calls will be provided and billed separately.

While competition spurred by the breakup of AT&T may eventually keep local rates in check, the initial reaction may be to increase those rates. Illinois Bell has traditionally used profits from some of its long-distance revenues to subsidize local rates. With that support gone, the rates may, in turn, be affected.

The government spent about $15 million bringing the antitrust suit against AT&T. The trial started in Washington a year ago and had been

Press-Record price to rise Jan. 18

Soaring prices for newsprint (paper) and rising distribution costs have forced the Press-Record to announce that the paper will increase in cost from 20-cents per issue to 25-cents, beginning with the Monday, Jan. 18, issue.

"This will be the first price increase for the Press-Record since 1974. It is a move we have been very reluctant to make, but are now forced to, so we may continue to provide the Quad-Cities with a quality newspaper and adequate distribution network," Press-Record General Manager Paul Halbert announced.

A large portion of the increase will be passed on to the 180 newsboys and girls who deliver the Press-Record door-to-door. It has been difficult to continue a staff of dedicated newscarriers at their current rate of profit, making an increase to the carriers necessary.

Other rising costs which have contributed to the necessity of a price increase include higher fuel and vehicle costs for the motorized distribution routes.

The cost of newsprint, on which the Press-Record is printed, has risen 44 percent since late 1979 and early this year will increase to approximately $640 a metric ton, which is 2,204.6 pounds. The cost of newsprint is a significant portion of the cost of operating the Press-Record.

"Through the nickel increase, we will be able to continue to provide the Quad-Cities with extensive and detailed news coverage of local governmental events, sports and society happenings while strengthening our distribution system to assure that every effort is made to supply customers with home delivery twice a week," Halbert explained.

"For 25 cents, you will get the timely combined effort of eight dedicated full-time journalists, several part-time writers and photographers, award-winning sports coverage and money-saving advertising and coupons. We hope you agree, it's still the best buy in town," he added.

Career ideas changing

(Seventh of 15 articles on "Working: Changes and Choices")

By RICHARD BOLLES
Last week, Jane bumped into her old friend, Alice. The last time she had seen Alice, ages ago, the latter was the executive ladder into middle management.

Now, however, Alice had the healthy look of one who spends much time outdoors. "How on earth did you find so much time to be outdoors?" asked Jane.

"Oh, Alice replied, 'since I saw you last I made a career change.'"

"Tom was in his favorite restaurant yesterday when he spied his old acquaintance Dick. Dick looked glum."

After the usual greetings, Tom broached the subject of his friend's mood: "What's wrong?" he asked.

"Oh, I don't know," Dick replied. "I think I must be in mid-career crisis."

Yes, in these episodes and in countless others, the word "career" is mentioned in many different ways.

Yet, for all the frequency with which we are exposed to the word, many of us have only the loosest definition of it floating around in our heads.

So, it is time that we examined the changing notion of a career.

In The Old Days — you know, when dinosaurs were roaming the earth — a person's career was the sum total of all the jobs he or she spent in the world of work.

If they started at sixteen, and worked until they were sixty-eight, that was their career — fifty-two years in length.

Thus, in a sense, the word "career" was used to identify the constant thread that ran throughout a man's or woman's life in the world of work.

The issue was: what was it that comprised that common thread?

Well in The Old Days, it was probable that an individual worked most of his or her life in the same organization. So, it was the organization that comprised the common thread.

A man would be a lifetime soldier, let us say, rising in the ranks from private to general.

Or a man would work all his life for Sears, Roebuck, and rise from clerk to company president. That was the career expectation.

In the case of a woman, the cultural expectation was that she would begin as a secretary and rise to ... secretary.

All, of course, within the same organization.

People came, in time, to speak of "a career ladder" within that organization to designate an individual's rise.

CAREER EQUALS FIELD.

This concept of a career ladder began, in time, to be discarded.

People began to notice that individuals did not stay within the same organization all of their working lives. Workers moved around, from one organization to another.

What we need, in our day, is to re-examine the question: what is the constant thread that runs throughout a working person's life, in spite of the fact that he or she changes organizations or even changes fields?

The answer, in a nutshell, is: his or her functional-transferable skills, and his or her preferred people-environments.

The two are one, for they are but different sides of the same coin, as career theorist John Holland has clearly demonstrated in his classic book, "Making Vocational Choices: A Theory of Careers."

This, then, is the constant thread that remains in a worker's life changes.

"Where you a problem solver at age four? When you're older, you're able to think of ten ways of delaying bed-time?"

Then, in your adult life, you are probably using the very same problem-solving skills. All that school, time and experience were able to do was to sharpen that skill.

It may be exquisitely more sophisticated in its present form, but it is the same skill.

And if you are in a job that gives you fulfillment, the odds are great that the job permits you, even encourages you, to use that skill.

On the other hand, if you are in a job that makes you feel like a square peg in a round hole, the odds are great that you are denied the opportunity to use that skill — and this is the source of your stress and dissatisfaction.

But whether the job fits you or not, you remain constant. Your functional skills remain constant. And so do the people-environments that you prefer to work in.

Artists, for example, commonly like to be with other artists — kindred souls, as they say — rather than with data processors, a diametrically opposite people-environment.

From all of the foregoing, we can see just how the notion of a career has changed, and why.

It has all depended upon what was the constant thread in a worker's life.

It is a thread, however, and only a thread. A career is not the thread. A career is the total of all the jobs we speak of "the career part of a man" or "the career part of a woman."

Example: when people, today, say they want to make a career change, our society normally expects them to go (or go back) to college. Why?

Because "fields" are taught in schools (as majors), and if you are going to change careers (read: "fields"), you obviously need to be retrained.

Of course, if a carpenter is going to become a doctor, we would hope he or she would go back to school.

But the common mythology holds that everyone contemplating a career change needs retooling, despite ample evidence from thousands of people's lives that such retooling is often simply not necessary.

held in balance — one would hope — with "the play part" of a man or woman, and "the learning part" as well.

But for now, we must ask: what is the practical implication of this changing notion of a career?

Ah, that is easy: in the old days, if you wanted to advance your career, you studied the organization (and its career ladder).

In more recent times, you studied your field (or a new field).

Now, to advance your career, you must learn what you do best with people, data, or things (your functional, transferable skills, that is) and what kinds of people you prefer to work with, as described in "What Color is Your Parachute?"

To paraphrase Alexander Pope (viciously): "Know then thyself, if you would study thy skills will banish fears."

Emphasis on reclamation.

Alton Packaging Corporation, announced a name change for its Paper Reclamation Division, which now becomes its Reclamation Division.

"Deleting the word 'paper' is a logical move in view of an extension in activities to include aluminum cans and other forms of non-paper waste. The change in name also reflects an intention to expand further into other forms of profitable reclamation," according to John H. Veldt, vice-president and divisional general manager.

Alton Packaging will recastin become of 600,000 tons of waste paper this year, with half of the tonnage consumed by Alton's recycled containerboard and paperboard mills.

The division consists of ten plants in Midwestern, Southern and Southeastern states, with two of the locations emphasizing exports, Jacksonville, Fla., and recently acquired Fort Lauderdale plant.

Alton Packaging, a member of the Jefferson Smurfit Group Ltd., is engaged in paperboard packaging, paper reclamation and paperboard mill production and manufactures folding cartons, corrugated shipping containers and paper tube products.

Keeping your home safe from burglaries effective in deterring burglars.

"Doors containing lots of glass often fall prey to burglars using glass cutters. Solid-core doors that lack windows — but are equipped with security peep-holes — are more favorable. Hard plexiglass is another alternative that makes a burglar's window-work more difficult."

"Another consideration is the installation of an electronic burglar alarm system. The best source for one?"

"Call several distributors and installers for conferences at your home to address your needs. The idea is to become an expert on the type of system best for you."

"As a guide, a home is best protected with a system that responds to a guard station. However, a monitor service may be purchased from the installer. This service would signal an invasion at the monitor's office."

"In turn, the service would report it to the local police. Some systems may be wired directly to the police station and, in some instances, to a fire station."

"Costs for such systems vary according to their sophistication, but a complete electronic system for an average home can be purchased for less than $1,000."

"Another advantage of the electronic burglar alarm system is that many insurance companies give discounts on a policyholder's homeowners premium when the home is protected by a burglar alarm."

"How do you know if the home is secure? Ask yourself this question: 'If I lost my keys today, would I be able to get into my house without loudly smashing a door or breaking a window?' Should you answer yes, so can a burglar."

"Dark areas around the home can provide effective camouflage for thieves. But using outside lighting around doors and windows can be a deterrent."

"On the same note, while many think the nailed window is a secure one, they may want to think twice. A nailed window without sliding-bolt locks can be opened by burglars who pry the nails out. Use either a slide-bolt lock or install wooden rods in each window sash."

retiring captain, Kent Speers, Gary Giovannini, Paula Weiss, Dee Adams, Ed Duffin, Bruce Evans, Jerry Dresch and Bill Horton, newly-elected team captain. Nineteen qualified divers, none of whom are paid, belong to BURT, which is starting its 10th year of service to Granite City and surrounding communities.

drowning victims from rivers, lakes and ponds.

In some instances, team members also have located and recovered weapons police believe have been thrown into various bodies of water.

BURT initiated its 10th consecutive year of operation recently when members met to elect officers at the home of Dee Adams, 2411 Cardinal Ave. Adams was among the team's organizers.

New officers elected for 1982 are: Bill Horton, captain; Bruce Evans, Glen Gates and Bud Horstmeier, lieutenants; Mrs. Pat Evans, recording secretary, and Dee Adams, treasurer.

The election and a review of the team's plans for the new year occupied members for part of the meeting, but the occasion actually served a dual purpose.

The second reason was more personal in nature for the host couple, Mary and Dee Adams, whose home was totally destroyed in the April 3 tornado and has been rebuilt from the basement up.

The get-together with team members and their wives provided an opportunity to visit the new house, as a group, for the first time.

"Mary and I wanted to say thank you to all our friends who helped us when we lost everything in the tornado," Adams said.

"Everyone rallied around and the help we received from BURT members, as well as other friends, is deeply appreciated," he added.

The immediate and unsolicited assistance given the Adams family is indicative of the close-knit cooperation found within the team's ranks, an attribute that assumes vital proportions when translated into underwater recovery procedures.

The key is teamwork.

BURT has 19 divers, all members of the Bubblemasters Scuba Club of Granite City.

Team members must be members of the Bubblemasters, but not all Bubblemasters can qualify for BURT.

One has to apply for the team and, only if other team members approve, will a new member be allowed to join. The explanation is simple. Careful screening of prospective members is a "must" and those accepted must have exceptional skills and a level head, a spokesman said.

The Bubblemasters Scuba Club's 100-plus members primarily dive for fun, frequently in skill-developing competition, but usually in water relatively clear, down to 35 to 50 feet.

BURT divers, however, dive most of the time in zero visibility water, finding their way around in what is described as similar to being in a totally dark room.

"You learn to be extremely cautious and work together, but still accomplish an exacting task," the spokesman explained.

BURT operates as a member of the Madison County Firemen's Association and with the Granite City Emergency Services and Disaster Agency (Civil Defense).

Team members are "on call" 24 hours a day through area fire departments and the county sheriff's office. Since the team was formally organized in February, 1972, training programs have consistently been updated.

BURT divers are specialized in various techniques, including Underwater Search and Recovery, Dark Water Diving, hyperbaric resuscitation and Red Cross senior lifesaving.

Most members have completed Emergency Medical Technician training, have taken Cold Water Resuscitation through the United States Coast Guard and are water safety instructors, certified through the Red Cross and the International Dive and Rescue Association.

During 1981, BURT members have provided about 20 lectures to fire departments and various county officials in Hypothermia—cold water resuscitation.

The lectures also included a slide presentation and area groups interested in learning more about the procedure are invited to contact a BURT officer.

In addition to donating many hours in recovery work, a service which brings no joy, but is essential, each member is responsible for furnishing his or her own diving equipment. Current cost of this necessary gear is more than $1,200 per diver, according to Adams.

To ensure immediate response, the BURT team purchased a step-van in 1980, which is equipped with the gear necessary for underwater recovery, most of it donated by team members.

Plans also are in the works to obtain added diving equipment and newer communication devices for the van. It also has been proposed that respiratory equipment should be installed at a future date.

All this takes time and money, it was noted. Team members are not paid and the recovery work personally costs them extra money in terms of time taken off work, gasoline used in traveling to a site and similar expenditures.

"But we think it's important," the members state.

They keep in shape through competition, and practice signals and safety procedures for use in recovery operations in an area lake, "where visibility is nil and conditions are dirty."

A recent development probably will bring together veteran BURT divers and the Alton Volunteer Rescue Squad, a well-seasoned and commendable volunteer group which specializes in dragging operations, especially in the Mississippi River.

Adams said representatives of the two groups met in November to discuss future cooperative activities.

Current BURT divers, in addition to the officers, include: Vance Weiss, Paula Weiss, Richard Grizzard, Vicki Horton, Jerry and Judy Dresch, Pat Tanner, Ed Duffin, Gary and Sue Giovannini, Barbara Gates, Marie Godeite and Paul Foster, the retiring captain.

Course on word processing

Registration will end Wednesday for a new course in Office Management-Word Processing, which is being offered by Belleville Area College this spring to teach a basic understanding of how word processing can fit into a business operation. Students will learn to plan, implement and manage a word-processing center. The supervision of workers in a word-processing center will be covered.

The program is required for those majoring in word processing, but also may be helpful to anyone working in a business or industry which is establishing a word-processing center.

Experience in word processing is not required. Students will not be working on the equipment and need not know how to operate it. The class will meet from 1:30 to 2:35 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at the BAC main campus, 2500 Carlyle Road, Belleville, and will be taught by Norma Irwin, who teaches introductory, intermediate and advanced word-processing courses. Mrs. Irwin trained during a summer workshop at Ball State University in Indiana which was taught by Dr. Kay Wagner, a leader in the word-processing field.

TAKE WALLET

A wallet, containing credit cards, check cashing cards, a checkbook, miscellaneous papers and about $1 in coins, was stolen from the purse of Karen Reynolds of Worden. The purse was beneath a desk in a fifth floor office at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, she reported Thursday.

GOOD NEWS

You could build up a $1,000,000.00 retirement fund.

Starting Jan. 1, 1982, Individual Retirement Accounts are available to all wage earners. Formerly, IRA's were reserved for workers not covered by an employee pension or profit-sharing plan.

And more good news — now you can shelter up to $2,000 from income taxes annually while you build substantial funds for a secure retirement. If both husband and wife are employed, each can establish a separate IRA. If you spouse is not employed, you can deposit — and exempt from taxes — $2,250 annually.

TAX SHELTER? $2,250.00 SPOUSAL IRA? EARLY WITHDRAWAL?

Delay in aid

"I believe that when we explain this to the folks who make decisions, they'll work with us."

Ronald Cardoni, an IASB lobbyist, said many schools may decide to accept the delay because, otherwise, there will be a sharp reduction in state school aid in the governor's budget outline for the next fiscal year.

The first draft of the budget is expected by Jan. 31. Legislation for the aid delay is being drafted for introduction in early January.

Cardoni added that some superintendents are telling him Gov. Thompson devised the plan "to make his own June 30 treasury balance look better than it really is."

Edwardsville Assistant Supt. R. E. Poe said, "Delaying that money for 30 days would be like not getting a paycheck. It could cause a strain on our funds."

Staunton Supt. Murlin Hawkins commented, "It would alleviate some of the state's cash worries at the school districts' expense. It's improper to change the game in the middle of the stream. If other schools are like ours, they need that money."

THEFT PROBATION
Michael J. Robinson, 29, of 305 Meredith St., Venice, was placed on 18-month probation in December by Circuit Judge A. A. Mateosian for a Sept. 11 felony theft in the unincorporated area of Madison County.

Boy Scout Troop 36, sponsored by the Maryville School PTA, brightened the holiday season for one Granite City girl by providing her with a bicycle. Bob Kennedy of Wood River donated a three-speed bicycle to the troop during the holidays. Darrell young, Darrell Schaefer, Mike Charbonnier and Scott Wilson shined the bicycle and searched for someone who needed a bike.

Linda Stewart, who lives in Kirkpatrick Homes, was picked as the lucky girl. The boys presented the bike to her at her home.

Future activities for the troop include a winter campout at Camp Blue Sky and a chili supper Feb. 12 at Niedringhaus United Methodist Church.

Bud Charbonnier is scoutmaster and Bob Young is the assistant scoutmaster.

Invite local participation in fund drive

James H. Howe III, president of the Missouri Historical Society, is inviting Quad-City area residents to participate in a $4.2 million campaign to renovate the society's facilities in the Jefferson Memorial Building in Forest Park. This is the first time the 118-year-old privately-endowed historical organization has undertaken a major public fund-raising campaign. The campaign also will permit the society to continue improving its public programs and services, as well as strengthen its role in the cultural life of the metropolitan area. "The campaign has been named the New Dimensions Fund," according to Howe, who is also general co-chairman. "In keeping with the many new dimensions and dimensions to which the Missouri Historical Society is committed." At a news conference last week, it was announced by Harold M. Stuhl, first vice-president of the society and general co-chairman of the campaign, that the society's New Dimensions Fund already has received gifts and pledges totalling $2.5 million, or 60 percent of the campaign goal. Reporting on the progress and success of the drive to date, Stuhl said that the society has received "a large number of major corporate gifts, including a lead 'team gift' of $400,000 from the McDonnell Douglas Corporation, which includes $100,000 from the McDonnell Douglas Personnel Charity Plan." He also announced that Emerson Electric Company has pledged $400,000 to the campaign. Other corporate gifts include $250,000 from the Ralston Purina Trust Fund, $200,000 from the Anheuser-Busch Foundation and $100,000 from the St. Louis Clearinghouse Association, which represents Mercantile Trust Company N.A., Center Bank, Boatmen's National Bank and Manufacturers

Bank & Trust Company. While St. Louis corporations have taken the lead in the New Dimensions Fund, Stuhl reported that several major gifts have been received from individuals and that the total of all individual gifts now stands at more than $1 million. Sanford N. McDonnell, board chairman and chief executive officer of McDonnell Douglas Corporation and honorary co-chairman of the New Dimensions Fund campaign, said: "The importance of the Missouri Historical Society is fully appreciated once we realize that it is the only organization in our community which is collecting, preserving and exhibiting items relating to the history of St. Louis, the state of Missouri and the Western states included in the Louisiana Purchase Association, which represents Mercantile Trust Company N.A., Center Bank, Boatmen's National Bank and Manufacturers

Second row, Hershel Thrasher, John Tucker, Kevin Ricks, Danny Compton, Floyd Hanne. Third row, James Utley, Victor Jahnson Richard Hahn, Harry Sharp, Fourth row, Richard Staggs, Hiram Ables, Gene Ross, and Charles Dawson. The retiring master, Hiram Ables, welcomed members and guests and introduced the installing officers, E. Gene Ross, deputy grand master, A.F.-A.M. of the state of Illinois, Harry Sharp, Charles Dawson, and Richard Staggs. The Rev. C. Dale Edwards, pastor of First Assembly of God Church sang a song accompanied by his wife, Dorothy, at the organ, followed by Bethel 43, Order of Job's Daughters forming a cross and the James Stuart Chapter, Order of DeMolay presenting the nine o'clock interpolation. DeMolay Neil Mize gave the Ceremony of Lights ritual, and a 50-year pin was presented to Ralph Williams. After the ceremonial a buffet dinner was served by members of Bethel 43.

Candidate night for Democrats As winter continues, so do road hazards

Democratic candidates for Madison County Board will address the Granite City Democrat Club for "Candidate Night" Wednesday at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 2022 Edison Ave. The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. Candidates will be given individual time to discuss their candidacies and qualifications. If time permits, there will be a question and answer session.

Chief of Police Ronald J. Veizer today warned Granite City motorists that winter problems are far from over. They'll probably get worse before they get better, he said. One of the chief's main concerns was the effect of budget restrictions and cost increases on the ability of official agencies to provide the level of manpower, equipment and materials accustomed to in the past. "Under winter conditions, this is serious," he said. "Financial restrictions clearly indicate reductions in traffic enforcement, patrolling, and maintenance operations related to traffic tie-ups and winter's clogged and slick roadways."

This, according to the chief, places an even greater burden on each driver's know-how in overcoming adverse winter road conditions. He cited 10 winter driving techniques, developed by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards and endorsed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police:

- PRECAUTION 1 — Keep your steering easy and steady on ice and snow. Don't make abrupt changes in directions. Anticipate lane changes and turns, and make them gradually.
- PRECAUTION 2 — Thinking ahead is the best way to make your stops safe, too. Slow down gradually and be especially careful when you approach intersections. Starting and stopping traffic "polishes" the snow and ice and multiplies the hazards. Veizer says the way to stop on a slippery surface is to apply and release the brakes intermittently — on and off again. You maintain steering control during those moments when your wheels are rolling. Don't brake hard or suddenly, or you'll lock your wheels and go into a skid.
- PRECAUTION 3 — Don't panic and don't brake if you go into a skid. Steer in the direction the rear of the car is sliding. Don't oversteer. When you feel the car straighten out, turn the wheels straight and keep rolling.
- PRECAUTION 4 — When most of the road is clear, watch for icy patches in shady spots, such as wooded areas, underpasses, and on bridges and overpasses. If you hit an ice patch unexpectedly, hold the wheel steady and roll through. Jamming on the brakes could send you into a skid. PRECAUTION 5 — If you have an automatic speed control, don't use it when driving conditions will not permit a constant speed, such as in heavy traffic, on winding roads or when roads are snow-covered and slippery.
- PRECAUTION 6 — Give yourself a good field of vision, in all directions. Clear off the entire windshield and all other windows, side and rear. Be sure your headlights and taillights are clear and clean.
- PRECAUTION 7 — Sleet, swirling snow, fog — all cut visibility. It's best not to drive at all in severe conditions. But if you must, keep your speed down and your headlights on low beam. Pull off the road to a safe spot when visibility nears zero.
- PRECAUTION 8 — Be prepared in case you encounter traffic tie-ups. Keep your gasoline tank reasonably full at all times. Keep your exhaust system, battery and emergency equipment in dependable condition.
- PRECAUTION 9 — Carry, and use, fire chains during severe snow and ice conditions. Chains provide from four to seven times the traction ability of regular tires for climbing icy grades or pulling through deep snow.
- PRECAUTION 10 — Get the "feel" of the road by accelerating carefully to see if wheels spin; or brake gently to see if they skid. Reduce speed accordingly. Chief Veizer concluded with this reminder: "Thorough preparation and a healthy respect for winter's hazardous driving situations are your personal safeguards these days against the added problems created by curtailed enforcement and highway maintenance operations."

LAURA DAVIS

Recently our 17 month daughter was hospitalized because of a piece of chicken lodged in her throat. The next morning the doctor came to her room with some startling news. Laura's trachea was growing crooked. Depending on further x-rays, surgery would probably be necessary. More x-rays were taken before we left the hospital. We had just arrived home when the hospital called. This last set of x-rays were no better and we were to bring her back in the morning. That night revival services began at our church, The Rock Church. Laura was prayed for during that service. The next morning Laura was x-rayed several times. The doctors could find nothing wrong. God had healed our daughter. We praise the Lord for salvation, healing and the many blessings God has provided through this revival with Br. Cowan.

scheduled to resume again this week when announcement of the settlement was made.

A statement by AT&T, the company said the settlement means that all AT&T companies involved in providing local calls will be sold. In return, the Justice Department has dismissed the antitrust suit against the company.

"We did not come to this decision easily. What we and all the other parties sought was to balance the interests of tens of millions of consumers, three million shareholders, one million employees, and the national defense," the statement read.

AT&T representative stated that the division will give each state the sole jurisdiction over local telephone companies. AT&T must turn over everything local companies need when the exchange of ownership is accomplished and must help local companies meet customer needs.

"Competition in the intercity communications market will be encouraged. All of the many companies will have equal access to local markets. Bell will be but one of the competitors in a free market," according to the statement.

Without the ownership of the local services, AT&T is expected to enter into new areas such as cable television and to offer electronic publishing services and data processing.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association had tried to prevent AT&T from entering the electronic news distribution to homes while the company-controlled local phone lines. Congress subsequently passed legislation to that effect, which now seems to be void.

One worry backing the legislative action had been the fear that AT&T would have used rate-payers' money to finance the venture into new fields. The agreement ends a nearly eight-year antitrust battle between the Justice Department and AT&T. According to a statement by Assistant Attorney General Baxter, the settlement means that AT&T will have to compete on equal terms with companies that wish to transmit information over telephone wires.

Baxter does not back the theory that local rates will rise as a result of the settlement.

N&W combines regions

To improve operating efficiency, Norfolk and Western Railway is consolidating its Lake Region, headquartered in Cleveland, with its Western Region, based in St. Louis, Richard F. Dunlap, NW executive vice-president, announced today.

The consolidation began Jan. 1. E. F. Murray, general manager of the existing Western Region, is the new general manager of operations in the combined Western Region. At the same time, C. M. Irvin, former general manager of the Lake Region, will move to Roanoke, Va., to assume the same post for the Eastern Region. J. L. Marata, formerly general manager of the Eastern Region has become director of special projects.

Dunlap said that railroad operations will be improved as a result of the move because of the closer coordination of operations within the combined region. Saying that the consolidation was primarily a change in organization and reporting lines, Dunlap noted that few employees will be directly affected. "There will be a few transfers, but no major impact on em-

PARTICIPATES IN FIELD EXERCISES

Lance Cpl. Edward L. Heintz, son of Edward J. and Gloria J. Heintz, 1330 West Pontoon Road, recently participated in "Field Firing Exercise 2-81." He is a member of Headquarters Battery, 10th Marines, based at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

During the three-week exercise, conducted at Fort Bragg, N.C., his unit practiced all aspects of field artillery employment. They fired the 105mm and 155 mm howitzers under simulated combat conditions, both night and day. Additionally, they conducted tactical road and cross-country marches.

He joined the Marine Corps in February, 1980. The Lake Region also includes the Pittsburgh Division, and Buffalo and Bellevue Terminals. They have been incorporated into the Western Region as well.

He has been taken out of the ICU Unit and is in stable condition in a room at the medical center today.

The near-tragedy reflected the extreme weather that already was being experienced here, but winter began to create an even greater impact as icy winds and snow flurries swept through early Saturday, during the hours immediately after midnight.

The temperature continued to drop throughout the day. And Sunday was worse, qualifying as easily the most severe day of the 1981-82 winter season, at least so far.

The Free Spirits REACT group was among those active in monitoring citizen band radio communications and helping speed assistance to victims of weather emergencies.

Fuel trucks were disabled by the icy weather at Lambert Airport yesterday, causing Trans World Airlines to divert traffic late in the day. Some flights to St. Louis were arriving two hours late.

Roads were reported to be in good condition south of here, but hazardous in the Springfield area and farther north.

The low temperature strained home heating units, creating fire hazards, and an Alton woman, Patricia Elliott, 44, died of smoke inhalation in a blaze at her residence. There were numerous Chicago area fires, with 27 below-zero weather hampering firefighters.

Although conditions were not as bad as in Chicago, numerous minor frostbite cases were treated during the weekend at St. Louis metropolitan area hospitals.

In addition to difficult-to-open doors, many automobiles failed to start Sunday, and emergency staffs were kept busy trying to aid the owners.

Wind gusts of up to 35 miles an hour added to the problems encountered Sunday, and there were gusts of 40 miles an hour this morning, although the temperature climbed a bit during the night and had reached zero by today's morning traffic rush.

Colder weather was recorded here only nine days in the last 118 years. The all-time low of minus-23 occurred Jan. 29, 1873.

For the Midwest, the weather was described as the coldest of the 20th Century. The wind-chill was minus-81 in Chicago yesterday.

Three members of the New York City Polar Bear Club swam in the Hudson River, however. And, predictably, an enthusiastic fan sought to express support for his victorious team by removing his coat and shirt during part of the football game in icy Cincinnati.

Snow drifts closed some Wisconsin highways and a blizzard in northern Indiana trapped 53 passengers on a bus. They spent Saturday night along with 54 stranded motorists who had taken shelter in the state police barracks near South Bend.

As part of a Texas International Airlines promotion yesterday in St. Louis, 50 bikini-clad residents, with cold-induced "goosebumps" visible, received free tickets to southern resorts. Many Quad-Cityans appeared to be ready to join them, even if they had to pay for their tickets.

State checkbook improving

At the halfway point in Fiscal Year 1982, the state's General Funds balance — though slightly improved — remains in the "warning zone" (under $200 million). Comptroller Roland W. Burris reported last week.

The comptroller said that the available balance in the General Funds on Dec. 31 was $168 million, up $48 million from one month ago, but $224 million less than the balance at the end of December, 1980.

Burriss noted that revenues from state sources increased $44 million or 1.4 percent in the six-month period, but federal funds dropped by $89 million or 11.5 percent in the same period.

Burriss noted that the state's spending rate has slowed somewhat from last year, down $14 million or 4 percent from the year ago. The principal cause of the dip in spending was a $28 million drop in refunds and a $28 million decrease in Marine Corps Helicopter Air Squadron, New River, Jacksonville, N.C.

The three-week exercise was conducted at the Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center, Twenty-nine Palms, Calif. His squadron conducted training in ordnance delivery, tactical flight formations, forward air control, low level navigation, coordinating calls for artillery fire and photographic reconnaissance.

VMO-1 flies the OV-10 "Bronco," a unique twin-fuselage aircraft designed to provide aerial observation and air-to-ground support. A 1973 graduate of Assumption High School, East St. Louis, Ill., and a 1977 graduate of Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, Ill., with a bachelor of arts degree, Fuzessery joined the Marine Corps in December, 1975.

Series follows history of life

The history of life — a story which spans three and a half billion years and tells its origin and destiny — is recounted in "Life on Earth," a 13-part documentary series which will debut on KETC Channel 9 at 8 p.m. tomorrow. It will be repeated on Sunday, Jan. 17, at 7 p.m.

David Attenborough, a best-selling author and foremost natural historian who has made more than 100 films, is author-narrator of this series, which was an enormous critical and popular success when it first aired in England.

A story of infinite fascination, mystery, complexity and excitement, "an indispensable document of our age," is but one of the British press reactions to the series, which took three years to make and necessitated a complex globe-trotting schedule to more than 100 different locations in 30 different countries.

The first program in the series, which was produced by the BBC in association with Warner Brothers Television, will present an overview of the entire series, ranging from single-cell creatures to man. "Life on Earth" follows the processes in the ever-changing world of nature, the rise and fall of species, the endless struggle for survival and the triumph of adaptation to new and sometimes hostile environments.

"Life on Earth" is locally funded by the Academy of Science of St. Louis and the Angelica Corporation.

The department measures how accurately it is distributing food stamp benefits by examining a sample of recipients.

Between October 1979 and March 1980, 84.1 percent of the food stamp benefits issued in Illinois went to people who were entitled to them and in the correct amount. Between October 1980 and March 1981, this had increased to 88.5 percent.

A newly enacted federal policy rewards states showing significant improvement in quality control. Administrative costs for the food stamp program are usually reimbursed 50 percent by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

For the October 1980-March 1981 sampling period, Illinois instead will receive 55 percent reimbursement for administrative costs, an additional $998,000.

Illinois was one of six states selected for additional money because of improved performance. States that have error rates are fail to achieve reductions are subject to sanctions which could entail a loss of money.

In December 1981, the Illinois Public Aid Department served 361,929 families, consisting of 921,882 persons, through the food stamp program.

Services held for Harry Lieberman

Henry E. Lieberman, 73, St. Louis, founder and retired president of the Libson Shops chain, now known as Libson's Shops, died Thursday, Jan. 7, 1982, at Clayton on the Green Nursing Center.

A native St. Louisian, Mr. Lieberman started his business in women's fashion clothing in 1927 by selling hosiery in a shoe store on Broadway.

Through the years, the business expanded into a chain of 28 women's clothing stores in the Midwest, 16 of which were in the St. Louis area and one in Granite City.

He retired in 1977 as president of Libson Shops.

Mr. Lieberman also was president of the former Children's Research Foundation of St. Louis during the mid-1950s. His first wife, Dorothy Colman Lieberman, died in 1968.

Survivors include his widow, Marion Jacobson Lieberman of Creve Coeur; two sons, Barton L. and Gerald H., both of St. Louis; a sister, Freda Waxman of Boca Raton, Fla.; a brother Abie of St. Louis, and four grandchildren.

A private service was held at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 10, in the May Chapel at Temple Israel, 10765 Ladue Road, where Mr. Lieberman was cremated.

Partneys exchange charges

Beverly Partney, 31, of 2601 Edison Ave., surrendered to Granite City police at 4:15 p.m. Friday on a warrant alleging harassment by telephone.

A complaint against her was signed by her ex-husband, Daniel Partney, police said. Partney, a member of the Madison County Board and former candidate for mayor of Granite City, alleged he had been receiving annoying calls for some time and had a "trap" put on his phone by the telephone company.

While surrendering, Mrs. Partney told officers that she wanted to sign a complaint against her ex-husband alleging battery. She alleged that he came to her home, wanted in, called her father, Charles Partney names, and when she attempted to go inside, he grabbed the door, catching her left thumb in the door and injuring her right hand.

She also suffered bruises to her knees and alleged they were the result of a beating by Partney. Officers took photographs of the injuries, but no immediate charges were filed, records show.

AUTO BURGLARY

The automobile of Richard Ficker, 3008 Denver St., parked on the rear lot of Granite City High School South was broken into while he was attending classes, it was reported at 4:35 p.m. Friday. Taken from the vehicle was a camera, lens, converter, case and flash attachment valued at $329 and a bowling ball, bag and shoes, costing $90.

Council drops

The previous law had banned those 17 and under from using the machines, but in past discussions, most aldermen agreed with the police chief that the law was enforceable.

The ordinance did contain a section continuing the official policy on minors, but aldermen decided to strike that paragraph before taking a final vote at their Tuesday night council meeting.

Alderman Everett Morlen of the First Ward also proposed that an ordinance be written to delete a city law banning those 15 and under from using public pool tables. The alderman said pool balls had once been suspected of being gambling devices, but that was no longer the case.

Morlen said now seems the appropriate time to ask for the revision, in view of the new pinball ordinance.

The amusement device law will require all owners pay an annual $25 license fee when registering the serial number and location of each machine with the city clerk. The clerk will distribute stickers, which must be prominently displayed on each machine. Under the ordinance, the city will have the right to seize any machine not conforming to the new regulations.

In other business, the council decided to give the Lionel Portell, former superintendent of streets, a check for about $1,700 in compensation for sick days he accumulated 10 years ago as a street department employee.

"I just think it's the only fair thing to do," Mayor Paul Schuler told the aldermen when he made the request on Portell's behalf. Schuler said he based his recommendation on the "over 30 years or more of service" that Portell has given to the city.

When elected as superintendent of streets, Portell had not requested the money for which he was eligible when he moved from city employee to elected official.

Portell resigned his elected office to become public works superintendent for St. Peters. Mr. Schuler said he would announce Portell's replacement at the Jan. 19 council meeting.

The city finance committee will meet with representatives of South-Western Cable TV tomorrow at 3 p.m. in the mayor's conference room to discuss cable's proposed increase in its basic fee from $7 to $8. Committee meetings are open to the public.

After the council received a letter from South-Western requesting the rate increase, some aldermen had asked for a meeting to discuss an improvement in cable reception and the city's share of the cable profits.

In its present contract with the city, South-Western Cable returns three percent of its revenues to Granite City.

Further decrease in Illinois road deaths

Illinois highway traffic fatalities in 1981 totaled 1,850, a decrease of 6.5 percent from the 1,978 in 1980 and an 8.4 percent decrease from the 1979 fatality total of 2,019.

The provisional statistics were released Thursday by the Illinois Department of Transportation and the Illinois State Police.

Provisional figures also show a decrease for December. The month's fatalities totaled $36 (one in Madison County) as a result of 130 accidents, down 0.7 percent from the 137 toll in December 1980 and a 16.6 percent decrease from the December 1979 tally of 163.

There was a month-to-month road safety improvement in 1981, compared to 1980, except in January, February and May.

In December 1981, there were 29 pedestrians killed in 29 accidents, two more than the 27 killed in two accidents, three persons killed in three railroad crossing accidents, and two persons killed in two accidents involving motorcycles.

Christmas 1981 traffic led to seven deaths in Illinois, compared to 17 three years ago and 21 five years ago.

New Year's 1982 weekend fatalities numbered five, compared to 11 three years ago and 16 five years ago.

Security chief to speak on Wednesday

Lt. Col. Steven C. Schmidt, chief of security police for Scott Air Force Base, will be speaking at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Madison City Hall.

Local law enforcement officers, and young men who may be interested in the air police and related security are being invited to attend.

Lt. Col. Schmidt is chairman of an Explorer post at Scott AFB and will be speaking to members of Explorer Post 10-4 and guests wishing to attend.

As commander of the 375th Security Police Squadron, Schmidt and the 145 police in the air police squadron provide local police security for Scott AFB, one of the largest air bases in the country.

Schmidt also has taught police-related courses at the University of Dayton and Belleville Area College.

BAC course on purchasing

For the first time this spring, Belleville Area College will offer advanced purchasing, a course designed to help students in purchasing fields or plan to.

The class will cover risk management, purchasing techniques, forming information exchange groups and awarding purchasing contracts.

Gerald Altepeter, director of St. Clair County Purchasing and Sales Services, will teach the course, which will meet from 7 to 9:45 p.m. Tuesdays at Belleville Township High School East. Altepeter brings to the course 10 years of experience with the current list of 100 designated courses taking 12 or more credit hours and receiving a 3.4 to 3.49 average for the quarter out of a possible 4.

Qualifying for honors was Timothy J. Dix, 2448 Delmar Ave., a freshman.

A watch valued at $200 and $130 cash were reported stolen from the apartment of Miss Donna Steffenbean, 2248 Lee Ave., at 3:10 a.m. Saturday. Miss Steffenbean said her sister and mother had accompanied her to Edwardsville for a visit, where she agreed to loan her car to a relative. When he returned, he and the two sisters returned home and found the items missing.

The exact direction the course takes will be determined by the needs of those who enroll in it, Altepeter said.

Information on the course is available from him at 1-277-6600, extension 357.

Persons may register by visiting the registrar's office at the main campus, 2500 Carlyle Road, Belleville, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. through Wednesday.

Tuition for the three-hour course is $17 per hour or $51.

ACADEMIC HONORS

FOR TIMOTHY DIX

A total of 1,231 students at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio, attained honors during the fall 1981 quarter, based on their grade point averages with the current list.

Designate those taking 12 or more credit hours and receiving a 3.4 to 3.49 average for the quarter out of a possible 4.

Qualifying for honors was Timothy J. Dix, 2448 Delmar Ave., a freshman.

APARTMENT THEFT

A watch valued at $200 and $130 cash were reported stolen from the apartment of Miss Donna Steffenbean, 2248 Lee Ave., at 3:10 a.m. Saturday. Miss Steffenbean said her sister and mother had accompanied her to Edwardsville for a visit, where she agreed to loan her car to a relative. When he returned, he and the two sisters returned home and found the items missing.

Both the lecture and the lunch are free and open to the public. Additional information is available from RUTER's Religious Center at 1-692-3246.

KAREN LAPINSKI

Focus on protection of children

Governor James R. Thompson opened the first meeting of the Governor's Task Force on Children Thursday, emphasizing that he expects the panel to work toward setting specific goals in state child care.

"Every child in Illinois should have the opportunity to thrive and grow in a good environment," Thompson told the task force at the Executive Mansion.

"I want you to look at all aspects of what we do for children, what local, state and federal governments can do best, what the voluntary sector can do best, what families can do best and what we can all do together."

Task Force on Children, we can develop a state policy for children which specifically outlines the goals we want to reach and the way we should reach them," he said.

The 18-member panel of children and human services experts was appointed in December to study various areas of child care in Illinois, such as child care payments, protective services to prevent child abuse and neglect, prenatal and postnatal care, teenage pregnancy, needs standards and public assistance.

The task force will also consider material such as the Richman Report on the State of the Child in Illinois. Task force coordinator is Janet Otwell.

Religious lecture

Clark Williamson will deliver a lecture entitled "1931 Christianity: Survive the Holocaust?" Thursday, Jan. 14, at 11 a.m. in the Religious Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Williamson is professor of theology at Christian Theological Seminary, Indianapolis, Ind., and is the author of two books, "God Is Never Absent" and "Has God Rejected His People?"

Williamson's lecture is part of the United Christian Foundation's Theologian Series, featuring guest lecturers speaking on a number of topics in contemporary theology. The lecture will be followed by a lunch.

Both the lecture and the lunch are free and open to the public. Additional information is available from RUTER's Religious Center at 1-692-3246.

Last-second shot lifts Tigers over North 63-62

By ROGER KRAMER
for the Press-Record
EDWARDSVILLE

Although Derrick Mosley's fast break lay-up with two seconds left gave Edwardsville a 63-62 victory over Granite City North Saturday, his basket wasn't the only reason the Tigers were able to avenge their 50-40 loss to the Steelers Dec. 4.

The Tigers received help from a couple of unexpected sources, namely Paul Schaefer and Kevin Mosby.

Schaefer, the Tigers' 6-7 center, played in his first game since the Centralia holiday tournament. He had suffered an ankle injury in the first game of the tournament and did not practice or play a game until Saturday's game, but he came off the bench in the second quarter and scored 19 points.

Mosby, who hadn't played in some of the Tigers' games because of academic problems, was eligible last week. He scored 13 points, but more importantly, held North's Harold Rody in check the second half.

The Steelers had a 33-30 halftime lead, mostly because of the shooting of Rody. The 5-11 senior scored 13 of North's 17 first quarter points and had 16 points for the half.

The full court press hadn't stopped Rody, the half court zone defense hadn't stopped him, so Edwardsville coach Bud Vallino put in the man to man defense. It worked.

"We went with that defense because nothing else was working, and we put the pressure on Rody. We put Mosby head-to-head on him, and Kevin controlled him pretty well," Vallino said. Mosby's defense didn't stop North from adding to its lead in the third quarter because the Steelers distributed the scoring a little more. North led 54-48 at the quarter's end.

What finally led to North's downfall was a combination of Schaefer and Mosby's efforts and missed free throws and defensive assignments by the Steelers.

The Steelers failed to score for nearly five minutes in the fourth quarter. North missed three free throws in the bonus situation and a technical foul shot. The technical came after the Tigers' Mark Bradford dunked the ball after a personal foul had been called with 5:30 left in the game.

Schaefer, who scored five of Edwardsville's last eight points of the game, scored with 1:36 left to tie the game at 58-58.

Rody and Brad Thomas traded baskets to set up the final minute of play. Schaefer made the first free throw in the bonus with 35 seconds left, but missed the second throw. He had another chance with 13 seconds left, but missed that too, giving North a chance to win.

North was working for the last second shot, but Carl Luehmann was fouled with six seconds left. Luehmann made both of his free throws and North led 62-61. All North had to do was keep the Tigers from scoring.

Schaefer threw the inbounds pass to Mosley. Vallino expected Mosley to pass to Mosby underneath the basket, but the North defense left the middle open for Mosley to go for the shot himself.

"We didn't get him (Mosley) contained, and didn't execute on defense, and that got us beat," North coach Bill Ohlendorf said. "Schaefer came through for them when they needed him."

North, 5-7 on the season and 1-4 in the Gateway East conference, has not lost a conference game by more than seven points. Although 21, Sullivan 11, Whittington 8, FG-23, FT-16, PF-21. EDW — Bradford 10, Thomas 6, Mosby 13, Mosley 10, DeLeonardis 4, King 1, Schaefer 19. FG-26, FT-11, PF-21.

don't have the God-given talent to keep it up for the entire game. We have a tendency to relax, and then we can't make up for it in the late going.

"We've done a fine job getting in the position we are in. There are a lot of games left, and I think we've got some good things yet to occur for us through the end of March," Ohlendorf added. The Tigers are finally settling to a set starting lineup. "This is the first game where we had all our starters in," Vallino said. "We've played with different people out, and we're just starting to get things together."

Cougars dump Big Blue for third straight win

DECATUR — The SIUE-Edwardsville basketball Cougars rallied in the second half Saturday night to win their third straight game, 80-63 over Millikin University of Decatur.

The Cougars, who saw their record raised to 3-8, were paced by the scoring of Jeff Dean in the second half, trailed the Big Blue 33-27 at the halftime stop, but outscored Millikin in the second half for the victory.

Dean scored 14 of his game-high 20 points in the second half rally.

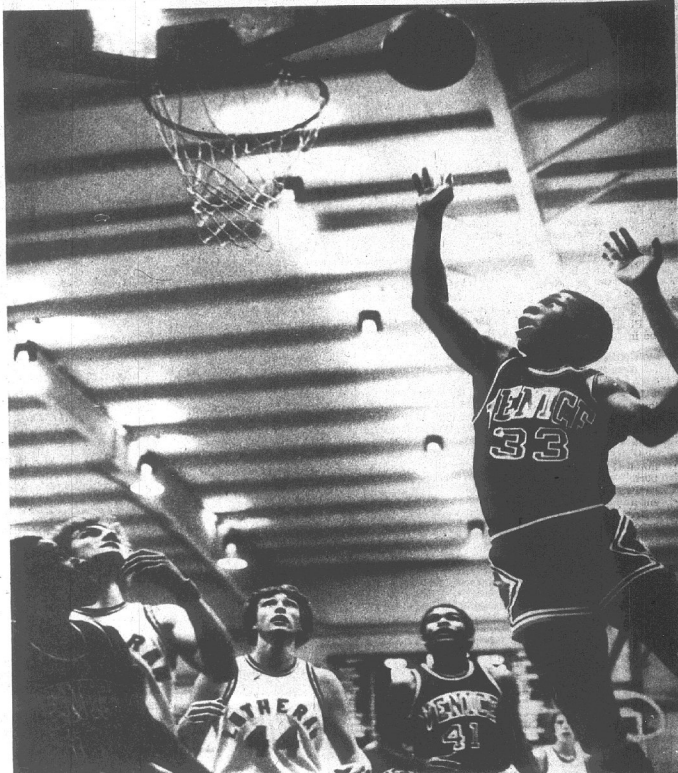

Randal Jones, a graduate of Madison High School, was also hot in the second half. He finished the game with 18 points and 16 of them were scored in the second half.

The Cougars of SIUE claimed the lead for good at the 9:25 mark of the second half at 49-49.

Millikin's record dropped to 6-4 on the season with the loss. The Big Blue were led in scoring by Eddie Taylor who pumped in 17 points.

In other games Saturday, the SIUE-Cardinale Salukis were beaten by Drake 65-55 in a Missouri Valley Conference game; Northeast Missouri beat Southeast Missouri 83-58 and Principia of Elsah, Ill. was edged by Blackburn College of Carlinville 63-62.

SKY-HIGH. Venice's Keith Marchbanks (33) goes up with a shot Saturday night against Metro East Lutheran High in Edwardsville. The game, played in newly-constructed Thomas Hooks Gym, marked Venice's first game in the Illini-Gateway Conference. The Devils beat Metro East 60-44.

Cahokia nudges Warriors

By TERESA GULL
of the Press-Record
GRANITE CITY — Granite City South's Warriors played like winners Saturday night against Cahokia but still ended up on the losing side of the scoreboard, 61-58.

Don Deterding, City South head coach, wishes the team would start being compensated for its hard work. "There's a lot of things that are pleasing. We're getting to the middle of the season. It's time these kids were rewarded," Deterding said.

"They're getting tired of hearing me say you did this right and that right. All they know is that they lost."

Saturday night's game was a perfect example. Deterding could find no complaints about South's offense, defense, rebounding or turnovers. And if he had to do it all over again, he would use the same strategy.

With 33 remaining in the game, South was losing by one point, 59-58. South had the ball. Deterding told his players to run down the clock, move the ball within 10 feet of the basket and take a last second shot.

When the ball was being passed into the lane for the shot, it slipped out of the hands of a South player. Cahokia picked up the ball, went in for a lay-up and scored, preserving their win.

Offensively, South executed well, shooting 57 percent from the field. They moved the ball, getting both inside and outside shots.

"Tonight was probably our best total team offensive performance," Deterding said. "We had guys come off of the bench who contributed. The guys on the floor played. It's just a shame we can't be rewarded."

The teams played evenly the entire game with the lead exchanging hands nine times and the score being tied eight times. The biggest lead enjoyed by either team was six points.

Both teams had 13 fouls and 29 rebounds. "We tied them at rebounds. That's one heck of an accomplishment," Deterding said, referring to the quickness and high jumping abilities of the Cahokia players.

Ken McBride, Cahokia head coach, was pleased with the victory but not of his team's play. "We didn't execute. Maybe the lay-off (Christmas break) hurt us," McBride said.

"They're (South) not a bad ball club at all. They've lost some close ones while we've won some close ones. "We've won seven games like this this season but I don't like it. I hope it doesn't blow up in our faces."

South was led in scoring by Pat Linhart with 20 points. Kenny McManus had 14 points and John Linhart added 12 points.

Cahokia featured a well-balanced scoring attack, with four players scoring in double figures. Larry Myers scored 17 points, with Stacey Blackman adding 15 points. Rounding out Cahokia's scoring was John Sweeney with 13 points and Randy Goodwin with 12 points.

Devils shake doldrums, get first loop victory

By PETE HAYES

EDWARDSVILLE

The Venice Red Devils shook off a case of the doldrums here Saturday night and went on the blast Metro East Lutheran 60-44 in their first game ever in the newly-formed Illini-Gateway Conference.

The doldrums took the form of some lackluster play in the first quarter.

"Our guys thought they were going to come in here and beat these guys by 44 points like they did last year," said Venice head coach Ken Perkins. "But we regrouped and started forcing them outside."

"We got a strong game from (Terrell) Ware," said Perkins. "He came out there and gave us the lift we needed when it was still close."

That came late in the second quarter and broke a 23-23 tie. Ware was on the tail end of Venice fast breaks three straight times and canned three straight jump shots from 18 feet out the same spot on the floor to give the Red Devils a 29-23 lead with 50 seconds remaining in the first half.

Venice had taken its first lead with 3:27 remaining in the second quarter on a steal and breakaway layup by sophomore guard Eddie Salmund.

"That gave us a lift," said Perkins. "He played a good game." Perkins juggled the starting lineup somewhat for his team's conference opener. He lifted Salmund from the lineup and inserted Ware. However, Salmund saw considerable action.

In the second half, Metro East started to show the signs of cracking under the pressure of the Venice defense. In fact, the Red Devils scored the first eight points of the third quarter to claim a 37-23 lead by 5:31 remaining in the period. But back came the Knights. They came back with six straight points of their own to make it 37-29. Then the Red Devils went on a scoring spree.

A rousing slam-dunk by Harold Milton at the buzzer gave the Red Devils a 48-34 lead at the end of the third quarter. That dunk by Milton will be forever remembered in Metro East's gym. After slamming the ball through the basket, Milton came tumbling to the floor and crashed into the metal wall behind the basket. He actually dented the wall.

Venice went on the outscore Metro East 12-10 in the fourth quarter, but several times had a lead of 23 points on the Knights.

The victory by Venice raised its overall record on the season to 7-4, 1-0 in the Illini-Gateway Conference. The Knights dropped to 2-2 in the conference and 6-6 overall.

Madison dumps Pioneers in four overtimes 80-78

By ROGER KRAMER
for the Press-Record

MADISON — It didn't matter to Madison basketball coach Larry Graham that it took the Trojans four overtimes to defeat East St. Louis Assumption 80-78 Friday. The only thing that mattered to him was that his team won.

"We'll take it anyway we can," Graham said. "We were just lucky to win. I think they (Assumption) are still a better team than we are, and I thought they played a better game than we did. Until we learn to shoot and play like we should, they still will be a better team than we are. We just had better luck."

After Shannon Manson made a 15-foot jump shot with 13 seconds left in regulation time to tie the game, Assumption had plenty of time to set up the winning basket, but Billy Papa stole the ball from Assumption guard Tony Berry with six seconds left. Although Madison won the game in the final six seconds, it might have been the most important play of the game.

"That steal when their point guard (Papa) took the ball from our point guard was the turning point of the game," Assumption coach Ted Daniels said.

Both teams had their share of luck in the four overtime periods, but the Trojans had just a little bit more luck.

In the first overtime,

Avery Crawford made a pair of free throws for the Trojans with 39 seconds left and Madison led 64-60, but Assumption's Chris Jones made a lay-up under a wide open basket to put the game into the second overtime. Assumption also had the luck in the second overtime. After Madison's Mark Zarr scored two baskets, but he missed a foul shot after the second overtime. With 47 seconds to go, Jones made another basket to force the third overtime.

The luck switched to Madison in the third overtime. Madison's Tony Berry rebounded off a Trojan shot and put it back in to tie the game at 74. The Pioneer's Terrence Anthony missed a free throw with seven seconds left, and the game went on to its final overtime.

Both teams tried ball control offenses in the final overtime and look for the good shots. The shots were there, but they didn't go in for the first minute of the fourth overtime. Zarr finally broke the silence with a layup at 1:34 left. Madgett scored with 1:04, and the Trojans led 78-74. However, Berry of Assumption missed a shot, cutting the lead to two.

Madgett was fouled with 24 seconds to go after Madison tried to hold the ball.

Madgett, who missed all six of his previous free throw attempts, made both free throws. Berry came back with a basket with 15 seconds left, but the Trojans controlled the ball long enough to win.

Madgett, who led all scorers with 24 points, had been on a scoring slump through much of the season and averaging less than 10 points a game. Madgett said he knew the reason why he had performed so well.

"The coaches and everyone else were expecting a lot out of me this season, and I was trying too hard to live up to those expectations. So I took my time and started to be relaxed more. The last two or three games, I've been starting to do better," Madgett said.

Manson scored 17 points for the Trojans, and Zarr added 11 points.

"Madgett and Manson were finally putting up more shots like they should,"

Graham said. "They didn't make a large percentage of them, but they were making the baskets when we needed them."

Both Madison and Assumption made major mistakes that cost them the victory in regulation time.

Madison's Joe Hurst held Assumption's Joe Hurst to eight points in the first half and led 33-27, allowed Hurst to score 17 for the Trojans. Assumption led 43-42 after that quarter.

Assumption suffered from both poor free throw shooting and foul trouble throughout regulation time.

The Pioneers made only eight of 23 free throw attempts for the game, and three Pioneers, Hurst, Jones, and Derek Berry, fouled out of the game. Hurst fouled out with 30 seconds left in regulation time.

"The fouls really hurt us," Daniels said. "We can't say that losing those players lost the game for us though, because our substitutes did a good job replacing them. We just didn't make enough free throws."

Hurst led Assumption with 17 points, Jones scored 16 points, Derek Berry had 15 points, and Tony Berry scored 14 points.

Graham said this victory was a morale booster for the Trojans. "We needed to win this game because of the way we performed at the Central tournament. We were really very fortunate to win."

Meanwhile, Daniels is looking forward to another rematch. Both teams are entered in the DuPont Class A Regional tournament. "We're a pretty good team, but we have to prove it because Madison's got all those green banners hanging on the wall."

GRANITE CITY — The last quarter heroics of Cahokia's Stacey Blackmon and John Sweeney allowed the Comanches to come from behind and defeat Granite City North 63-56 here Friday in a Gateway East conference game.

Blackmon scored 10 of his 20 points in the final quarter, and Sweeney scored 24 points for the game. The two combined for more than 67 percent of Cahokia's total offense.

"They got in a couple of shots that they didn't get in earlier in the game," Granite North coach Bill Ohlendorf said.

The score was tied at both the end of the first and second quarters. Cahokia led 45-43 at the end of the third quarter, but neither team could get more than a two point lead until late in the game.

With three minutes left in the game, Blackmon and Sweeney put together some baskets. The Steelers played Cahokia basket-for-basket for the rest of the way but couldn't catch up.

Harold Rody led North with 18 points, and Steve Tritschub scored 17 for the Steelers. Randy Goodwin added 13 points for Cahokia.

GRANITE CITY — Granite City South fell to Roxana 67-41 in overtime Friday night in the Warrior Gym.

A missed last second shot by Roxana sent the game into overtime. With :43 remaining in regulation play, the score was tied, 58-58. Roxana had the ball, decided to run down the clock and try for the last shot. An aggressive defensive play by South's Kenny McManus, however, knocked the ball away and prevented Roxana from scoring.

DAYTON, Ohio — It was a season filled with record-breaking performances for Wright State University's soccer team under first-year coach Alan Zaharako. The Raiders established a new win total with a 12-7 record, breaking last year's mark of 12 victories. And Granite City's Tim Dix, a freshman from South High, had a big part.

Defense was the key to this year's success. The team allowed only 1.14 goals per game, breaking the record set last season of 1.36. Junior Albert Tarras set a record with five shutouts but missed breaking his own record with a 1.09 goal average last season.

"We played an exhausting 22-game schedule," said Zaharako. "On the positive side, I don't think we played one team this year in which victory was not within our grasp. It was a young team, but a balanced team on the field. We had only two games in which we yielded more than two goals (three by Louisville and Oakland)."

Three seniors concluded four-year careers at Wright State. Senior Bob Collins led the team in scoring with 16 goals and three assists for 35 points. He also became the all-time goal scorer with 44, breaking Manuel Batres' record of 42. David Lyons started 14 games and scored three goals along with two assists for eight points. Curtis Butler started 19 games at midfield and finished third in scoring with seven goals and three assists for 17 points.

"While we will miss each of the three seniors, each one has left us with a model that future teams should emulate," said Zaharako. "I think we've already filled those spots with established recruits and transfers for next year."

"This was a good all-around season. Wright State showed this year that we are making inroads toward establishing a fine and competitive soccer team in Division II. This was the first time in our history that we were considered for an NCAA tournament berth. When we lost to Oakland, we lost to a solid team which deserves a bid."

Two freshmen were among the scoring leaders. Dan Durbin had 23 points on eight goals and a team-leading seven assists with eight starters at forward.

Ex started all 22 matches at midfield and scored three goals along with six assists for 12 points, fourth best on the team. Junior John Tackis had 11 points as a starting fullback while sophomore Mark Myton had 10 points as the starting center midfielder.

Henkhaus runs on his record

A second four-year elective term is being sought by Madison County Treasurer Michael S. "Mick" Henkhaus.

He said last week, "I am announcing my candidacy for re-election to the office of treasurer. I do this with thanks to the people of the county for the opportunity to have served the past three years, and with the hope and anticipation that they will return me to office."

"I sought the Democratic nomination for treasurer four years ago as a loyal and independent Democrat who wanted to put the interests of the people first. I am running with the same goal this time."

"Over the past three years, we have achieved much in the (treasurer's) office. In three years I have increased the investment of idle funds by 11 percent, bringing the total invested to 93 percent."

"The treasurer's office is now instituting a cash management program that will insure the investment of 100 percent of idle funds."

"The increased investment coupled with the combining of small accounts has resulted in over $4,800,000 in interest being earned in the first three years of my tenure."

"Since 1978, the entire budget for the treasurer's office has decreased by more than $2,000 at a time when other levels of government are increasing their spending. The decrease was accomplished by starting more efficient office procedures and by eliminating employees who served no function in the office or who performed poorly."

"I've been criticized for dealing with this inefficiently — but I'll mince no words. When public officials have the opportunity to increase efficiency and cut waste, they should do so. They betray the public if they do otherwise."

"If the situation arose again, I would not hesitate to do the same. I think the people of the county and rank-and-file labor support me in this matter."

"What I did was simple. I relieved four employees. They were under no contract at the time. Their positions did not benefit the people of the county, and the treasurer's office had no use for their employment."

"It comes down to this: Public employees must serve some useful function. They must never lose sight of who they work for: the people."

"By reorganizing the treasurer's office and combining jobs, I eliminated four positions and saved taxpayers close to $200,000 in three years."

"Today, there are four less employees in the treasurer's Office than when I was elected. One final point: I am the only county treasurer in the state who has signed a labor contract with his employees."

"In the last ten years, the taxpayers of the county have had to pay their installments within 30 days of each other. For the last two years, I have given the taxpayers an extension of 30 days (60 days total) to pay both installments."

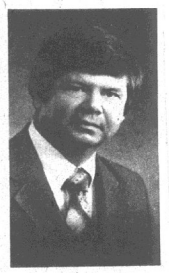

"I feel it is not the taxpayers' fault that the tax bills are late. The burden of catching up should be on the government, not the citizen."

"Also, through other administrative changes such as the use of computers, heavier emphasis on collection of mobile home taxes, pre-sorting of mail, and greater concern for the welfare of the citizens of the county, the collection and distribution of tax monies are done at a faster, more economical and more conscientious manner than ever before. I am proud of this record and I look forward to achieving even more."

"My record as treasurer and my longtime affiliation with the Democratic Party led me to seek the endorsement of my party a few weeks ago. After much consideration and much soul-searching, I decided to go to screening."

"At the time, it appeared that the race for treasurer would be the only contest in the Democratic primary which could result in divisiveness for our party. With this in mind, I went to screening."

"I did not want the situation to arise where the screening committee claimed they did not endorse me because I did not show up. Now, the treasurer's race is the only seriously contested one in the Democratic primary and the party has endorsed one of their loyal boys. That's fine."

"It's what I expected. I suppose that I had hoped in the back of my mind that the party leadership was also interested in unity and in producing good candidates and in being responsive to the people, but that notion was proved wrong."

"The result is the first non-endorsed incumbent in 16 years. By the way, that non-endorsed incumbent, Wilber Trimpe, beat the 'machine' in the primary in 1966. I'm in the race to stay, and I'm in to win."

Henkhaus continued, "I'm going to run this race the same way I did three years ago, by taking my campaign to the people, to the hard-working precinct committeemen, and by being open to the press."

"I will contact every precinct committeeman in this county. I want to talk to them and find out what they are thinking."

"So far, my inclinations have held true. The committeemen I have talked to in Wood River, in Alton, in Collinsville and in Granite City believe, as I do, that the party leadership is out of sync with the rank and file of the party and with the people."

"They know, as I do, that the leadership can sometimes lose touch with the committeemen and the people. This has been a problem with the party in Madison County over recent years."

"But regardless of what happened at the screening, I know that precinct committeemen across the county will be making their minds up about what to do in their precincts based on what is good for the people, good for the treasurer's office and good for the Democratic Party — not based on what is good for a few people in party leadership roles."

"My only regret is that the party leadership does not agree with my assessment that the party needs to be strong, united and forward looking. They have once again put personal feelings first."

"I still have the same attachment to the Democratic Party as I have had all my life. I am a loyal Democrat and always will be."

"That's why I am not at all discouraged by the actions of the screening committee. I have complete faith that I can take my campaign to the real backbone of the party — the precinct committeemen and, as always, the people."

"I'm seeking re-election because I'm a good treasurer and because I'm a good Democrat. I want to see that the people get the best possible public officials."

"I want to see the party as strong as possible and as responsive to the people as possible."

"To reach these goals, you have to do what you think is right rather than what a group of 14 party members say is right. That's what is so great about running for office in America."

"You can take your case to the people, even if there is a small group who would like otherwise."

"And I would remind everyone that if the screening committee had always had its way, we wouldn't have the outstanding person we now do in office: Evelyn Bowles as county clerk, Emil Tufant as sheriff and Jim McPike in the state legislature."

"If the screening committee had its way four years ago, I would not be county treasurer now. The people proved the screening committee wrong four years ago, and I believe they will do so again."

"I look forward to this campaign and to the time afterward, when the party will be strengthened and united."

"I know that sometime in the future, past differences can be put behind us and we can begin to look ahead and forge an open and people-oriented party."

Treasurer Henkhaus was born in Alton on Dec. 4, 1942. He was raised in Bethalto. He was educated in parochial schools, and graduated from Civic Memorial High School in Bethalto.

After attending Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, he served two years in the U.S. Army Reserve.

Henkhaus is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Madison County Police Association, as an associate member, as well as state and national treasurer associations.

He has held membership in the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, Pipefitters and Plumbers, United Steelworkers of America, International Union of Operating Engineers, and American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

He attends the Our Lady Queen of Peace Church in Bethalto and currently resides in Bethalto with his two sons, Mike, 13, and Matt, 11.

"My real opponent in my bid for re-election is the Democratic machine."

"This is it for them. They have to beat me, or they would anyone ever go to them for support in the future?" the candidate told reporters at a press conference last week at the Courthouse.

Henkhaus said he believed his alleged problems with unions have been "blown all out of proportion." The treasurer has been criticized for eliminating four jobs in his office, a move which angered members of several unions.

He said leaders of most of the building and trades unions have told him their unions will support him.

Henkhaus said a resolution signed by various school districts seeking to force him to make tax distributions every 30 days may have been started because of a disagreement he had with one particular school official.

"What it is," he said of the resolution, "is that they don't know what they are talking about."

He said he has made more tax distributions than the law requires.

The law says he should have made three distributions by now; 10 have been made, the treasurer said. "We have 91 percent of the money distributed."

Henkhaus said the Collinsville school district was the only district in Madison County to send a school board member in to talk to him about tax distribution.

That member was board president Dick Cain. Collinsville's school board later decided not to sign the resolution. The Granite City board adopted a resolution calling for forwarding of interest when tax allocations are delayed.

Henkhaus reiterated that in his three years in the treasurer's office, he has increased the investment of idle funds by 11 percent, bringing the total to 93 percent.

A cash management program recommended by the firm of Price Waterhouse is now being put into use and will insure the investment of 100 percent of all idle funds, he said at the press conference.

The county treasurer's office had received some criticism in those recommendations, because of the amount of funds not invested. Last week, Henkhaus said all the recommendations have been carried out. Henkhaus reminded the reporters that, through his efforts, county residents have had 60 days rather than the previous 30 day to pay their second tax installments in the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Robinson

Past officers holiday meet

Past officers of Gabriel Shrine 78, Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, met at Bunnery Cafeteria during the holidays for a business and social session, hosted by Mrs. Karmyn Edmonds and Charles Youngs.

Mrs. Hulda Griffith presided at the organ as Mrs. Edmonds led the group in singing seasonal songs. Table decorations were shepherdess, wise men, angels and flowers of the season. Prior to the business segment, a moment of silent prayer was held in memory of the eldest member, Mrs. Clara Harbig, who died recently.

Miss Jill Carol Scadron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin D. Scadron, Glenview, Ill., and Melvin Alan Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Robinson, of Collinsville, formerly of Granite City, were united in marriage on Nov. 28 at the Glenview Community Church.

The Rev. Robert Warskow officiated at the 12 noon double ring ceremony, before the altar decorated with a white floral arrangement.

Nuptial selections included Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring, "Hallelujah Chorus," and "Simple Gifts."

After the service, guests were received at a reception held at the North Shore Hilton Hotel in Skokie, Ill. A belated reception was held at the Collinsville VFW Hall on Dec. 19, hosted by the groom's parents.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a long white lace over polished cotton gown designed with a Queen Anne neckline, long sleeves and softly flowing skirt.

Her veil was secured to a halo headband and she carried a bouquet of white mums, roses and baby's breath.

Miss Kimberly Kavanagh served as maid of honor with bridesmaids, Miss Kimberly McVeigh, and Miss Evelyn Robinson, a sister of the groom.

They selected identical formal wine color dresses fashioned in a Victorian style. Each attendant wore sprigs of baby's breath in their hair and held floral arrangements of roses in a wine hue, pink mums and baby's breath.

The flower girl, Kathryn Wherry, a niece of the bride, was dressed in a white frock enhanced with a pearl trim. She also wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a basket of blossoms.

Bruce Elliott attended the wedding on Dec. 11 of Miss Elizabeth Ann Walsh, daughter of Mrs. Annette Walsh, 3016 Forest Ave., and Timothy W. Lohmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lohmann, 2928 Buxton Ave.

The Rev. Gary Perret officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Escorted down the white carpeted aisle and given in marriage by her brother, John J. Walsh, the bride wore a formal white chiffon over taffeta gown designed with an empire bodice, bishop sleeves, and sweetheart neckline accented with Chantilly lace and seed pearls.

The skirt featured an apron effect of Chantilly lace and extended into a chapel train.

Her fingertip mantilla style veil was bordered with Chantilly lace and pearls. She held a bouquet of burgundy and white roses intermingled with baby's breath.

Maid of honor Miss Suzy Newhaven and bridesmaids, Miss Beth Lehn and Mrs. Margaret Carpenter, a cousin of the groom, selected identical burgundy floor length dresses.

Their gowns were designed with spaghetti strap bodices and full skirts complemented with ching caplets, trimmed with lace.

Each held a floral arrangement of pink and white blossoms tied with pink streamers.

Utility increase is club topic

A possible 15 to 25 percent increase in utility bills was the main topic of discussion at a business meeting of the Anchorage Senior Citizen Club, held last week.

President Augusta Lampe presided and urged all members to write to their congressmen and state representatives to voice their disapproval of the proposed bill.

All members recited the Lord's Prayer and pledge to the flag to open the session. Reports were given by Johanna Jerrel, secretary and Vivian Mitchell, treasurer. Mrs. Woodie Lynn, sunshine chairman, noted five members are hospitalized and nine are recuperating at home.

Communications from the American Cancer Society, Heart Fund and National Kidney Foundation, were read during the session.

Plans were also made for a potluck dinner on Jan. 20, at the recreation hall of the housing facility.

Those honored on their birthdays included: Marie Tessari, Bertha Frith, Nora Stallings, Nola Heinley, George Braden, Helen DeRuntz and Vi Scrivener.

After the meeting cake and coffee was served followed by an afternoon of games. Prize winners were Edna Strand, Mrs. Tessari and Mary Bag.

Krauses name son David Paul Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. David Paul Krause of Caseyville, formerly of the Quad-Cities, are announcing the birth of a boy, on Dec. 6, at Oliver C. Anderson Hospital in Maryville.

The infant weighed three pounds, six ounces, and has blue eyes and dark hair. He has a 17-month old sister, Samatha Nicole.

Grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. Donald Krause of Granite City, and Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Martin of Collinsville. The mother will be remembered as the former Diana Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Lohmann

Lohmann-Walsh

St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church was the scene of the wedding on Dec. 11 of Miss Elizabeth Ann Walsh, daughter of Mrs. Annette Walsh, 3016 Forest Ave., and Timothy W. Lohmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lohmann, 2928 Buxton Ave.

The Rev. Gary Perret officiated at the double ring ceremony at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Escorted down the white carpeted aisle and given in marriage by her brother, John J. Walsh, the bride wore a formal white chiffon over taffeta gown designed with an empire bodice, bishop sleeves, and sweetheart neckline accented with Chantilly lace and seed pearls.

The skirt featured an apron effect of Chantilly lace and extended into a chapel train.

Her fingertip mantilla style veil was bordered with Chantilly lace and pearls. She held a bouquet of burgundy and white roses intermingled with baby's breath.

Maid of honor Miss Suzy Newhaven and bridesmaids, Miss Beth Lehn and Mrs. Margaret Carpenter, a cousin of the groom, selected identical burgundy floor length dresses.

Their gowns were designed with spaghetti strap bodices and full skirts complemented with ching caplets, trimmed with lace.

Each held a floral arrangement of pink and white blossoms tied with pink streamers.

Utility increase is club topic

A possible 15 to 25 percent increase in utility bills was the main topic of discussion at a business meeting of the Anchorage Senior Citizen Club, held last week.

President Augusta Lampe presided and urged all members to write to their congressmen and state representatives to voice their disapproval of the proposed bill.

All members recited the Lord's Prayer and pledge to the flag to open the session. Reports were given by Johanna Jerrel, secretary and Vivian Mitchell, treasurer. Mrs. Woodie Lynn, sunshine chairman, noted five members are hospitalized and nine are recuperating at home.

Communications from the American Cancer Society, Heart Fund and National Kidney Foundation, were read during the session.

Plans were also made for a potluck dinner on Jan. 20, at the recreation hall of the housing facility.

Those honored on their birthdays included: Marie Tessari, Bertha Frith, Nora Stallings, Nola Heinley, George Braden, Helen DeRuntz and Vi Scrivener.

After the meeting cake and coffee was served followed by an afternoon of games. Prize winners were Edna Strand, Mrs. Tessari and Mary Bag.

Students' freedom of speech stretched by follies

"Freedom of speech." Three words held dearly by the press, but words which can stir controversy when used by high school students in the schools.

Just how much freedom of speech should be given to high school students has been debated since Thursday night's Fall Semester Follies at Granite City High School South.

During the 10-act follies prepared and presented by students, at least three of the acts had drug-related topics. "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Dopey Nursery Rhymes" and "The Big Red Freak." Parodies of commercials including "Washing Star," in which a student eats presumably lax, lardon-cereal and has hallucinations, and "Backwoods Tokes," substituting an acronym for marijuana smoking for the "smokes" part of a commercial brand cigarette.

Needless to say, with some parents present, some eyebrows were raised.

School authorities say the follies are designed to let students express themselves in a fun atmosphere and officials try not to overly control the follies, which are primarily a student-conducted parody about school. However, had school officials realized that the overall production leaned so heavily on the topics of drugs and marijuana use, some repression may have been used. It is not the first time that freedom of speech has caused controversy in the schools, and probably not the last. At a recent high school seminar, a student requested time at the microphone to refute statements the principal was making about marijuana. Permission was granted and the student ended up "taking over the program," we understand. He was disciplined for using his freedom of speech.

America has become accustomed to college student newspapers carrying rebellious articles and references to drugs, marijuana, sex and other controversial topics. Most accept that students are mostly "grown up," but an overwhelming percentage of families still go by the rule, "If you live under my roof, I will have some say in what you can and cannot do."

However, high school students are in a "gray area." Parents of most high school students cannot deny that they are mostly "grown up," but an overwhelming percentage of families still go by the rule, "If you live under my roof, I will have some say in what you can and cannot do."

As freedom of speech advocates, we will not take a position on South's follies, but as a newspaper, we find it newsworthy that the times have changed, and particularly in the schools. Each individual will have to make up his own mind whether the "new freedoms" are healthy or detrimental to education.

Open Meetings Act can be helpful to area and state

Some Quad-City area and Madison County public officials are convinced that the new Open Meetings Act that went into effect in Illinois Jan. 1, 1982, may do more harm than good.

But we are inclined to applaud it as a further step toward the public's "right to know" about governmental discussions and actions.

Minutes must now be taken for the deliberations occurring during an executive (private) session. But they will not be read publicly and will be filed separately from the public minutes about regular portions of council and board meetings. They may be opened by the board or council at some future time if it is determined they would have no adverse effect.

An executive session, open to newsmen and key administrators, is held at some point during many local government meetings to review personnel decisions, court cases or property acquisitions.

The taxing bodies primarily conduct such sessions when they are considering sensitive matters, including employees' and potential employees' good and bad points.

As one of the requirements of the new law, it was announced immediately prior to last week's Granite City School Board executive session that the discussion would deal with "employment of personnel and establishment of compensation." This terminology was made a part of an official motion.

On occasions when it is decided—part of the way through an executive session—to discuss other topics than those mentioned at the start, the public body must reconvene its open meeting. It can then state the additional subjects and return to its private meeting.

Executive session minutes will include the trend of what was talked about without going into details of what was said. Formal action resulting from private discussions is to continue taking place when the public is present, with rare exceptions.

Executive sessions are entirely proper in some circumstances. However, in past years in some Illinois localities, they were used to keep people needlessly "in the dark" about their governments, sometimes for less than honorable reasons.

A continuing negative factor is that executive sessions could tend to discourage the public from attending public meetings, since citizens may have to stay outside the meeting room "cooling their heels" for long periods. To ease this situation, most boards which decide to hold an executive session confer privately immediately preceding or following (rather than during) their normal meeting hours.

Association of School Boards sees it will serve to "focus the attention of the public, news media, and enforcement agencies on some precise standards for meetings. The law now clearly provides that any citizen, including the state's attorney, can bring a civil action in court for violations of the Act.

"Citizens prevailing in a civil action under the Open Meetings Act will be able to recover their court costs and attorneys' fees from the offending public body."

"State's attorneys can still bring criminal charges against any person allegedly violating the Act. The Class C misdemeanor carries a maximum $500 fine and/or 30 days in jail.

"Some of the more common failings (in some Illinois communities) include: 1. Failure to cite in the minutes a specific reason for holding a closed meeting. Boards must make sure the minutes show that the closed meeting is for one of the lawful purposes provided for in the Act. The amendments require that a board vote on a motion to close a meeting.

"2. Going into a closed session to discuss personnel. This is not among the topics that may be discussed in closed meetings. However, the law provides exceptions for certain specific topics related to personnel, such as collective bargaining, recruitment, employment or dismissal of any employee or officer; or to hear testimony on a complaint lodged against an employee or officer."

"3. Discussing the sale of property. The law permits a public body to discuss acquisition of real property in a closed session, but the sale of real property is not exempted from the open meeting requirement.

"4. Meeting with an attorney to discuss any or all legal matters. Although some attorneys believe the Act violates the attorney-client privilege in some respects, it does not permit a public body to automatically exclude all meetings with an attorney. It is permissible only to discuss litigation when such litigation is either filed and pending, or is considered probable or imminent."

An IASB spokesman pointed out that the revised governance provisions of the majority of a quorum of the members of a public body held for the purpose of discussing public business. For a seven-member board, quorums are three members (four) would be three members. The Act also applies to all board committees. (For a 14-member, 10-member or eight-member public body, quorums are eight, six and five, and members of those numbers would be five, four and three.)

"Members of five-member or three-member boards have another problem: two members would make a majority of a quorum. Would two members of a public body violate the law by meeting on a street corner?"

"Some authorities maintain that officials would have to gather with the intent of discussing public business in order for the law to apply. Under this interpretation, three of a seven-member board could unintentionally find themselves together at a social event and proceed to discuss public business without violating the law.

"However, the attorney general has written that a chance encounter can lead to a violation, if a discussion among a majority of a quorum turns to public business."

"The safest course is to avoid discussing public business with more than one colleague at any time other than at a legal meeting."

"Business should probably be defined to mean anything that might reasonably be expected to result in a decision at some time in the future."

"A majority of a quorum might make, at least, if such a discussion might turn out to have a bearing on the future employment of the coach, however, then the discussion could become illegal and expose the discussants to criminal or civil action."

"Our best advice is to be pure of mind and to sleep easily. Refuse to talk about any illegal closed meeting, or grant such equitable relief as it deems appropriate."

"A private citizen who brings a successful action under the Open Meetings Act can recover attorney's fees and court costs from the offending public body. A public body can recover legal costs from a private party bringing an action only if the court determines the action was malicious or frivolous."

News notes

"Thank goodness it's Friday" may not have the same meaning in the future at SIUE, Provost Barbara Tetters is recommending that the local university switch from a four-day to a five-day week schedule each week. No final decision has been made.

A new state law makes both the driver and the owner of a vehicle subject to prosecution if it passes a school bus which has stopped to load or unload children.

Illinois prisoners after July 1 may be required to pay back the cost of keeping them in jail. Attorney General Tyrone Fahner ruled last week.

Mental Health Services of Southern Madison County, based in Granite City and with additional centers in Edwardsville and Highland, hopes to open a group home in Edwardsville. A public zoning hearing is set for 8 tonight at the Edwardsville City Hall, 400 N. Main St. There are three such group homes in Granite City, a spokesman said; residents pay rent and buy their food while receiving financial help from the government and some family support.

For part-time or volunteer work as well as "constructive daytime activity" to aid them as being smeared by emotional or drug problems.

Illinois unemployment dropped in December to 8.4 percent from 8.9 percent in November. The 1981 high was 9 percent in January and March, and the low was 7.5 in July. Nationally, December unemployment rose to 8.9 percent from 8.4 the previous month.

The federal government, which has decided to continue draft registration, plans to prosecute the more than 600,000 young men who have failed to register, unless they sign up during an amnesty period. Pres. Ronald Reagan estimated that advance registration would save up to six weeks in mobilizing recruits if this ever has to be done. Once an amnesty period of several weeks has been announced and concluded, those still failing to register will be subject to fines up to $100 and a fine up to $10,000.

The Madison County population as of Jan. 1, 1982, has been estimated at 246,600, compared to the official 1980 census total of 247,691. B-I state metropolitan area estimates total 2,488,400, up 26,619 from the 1980 census of 2,461,781 in the same geographic region.

"Minutes of a 'retronym' is an awkward and unfortunately redundant expression used to bring back to us the same meaning that the older, simpler word used to convey."

"The new law permits public bodies to waive their 24-hour public notice requirement for special meetings in a bona fide emergency—a situation requiring board action that simply cannot wait because of threats to life, safety, security or other matters in the public interest."

Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner has made a valid point in citing the importance of balanced rights. He regards the legislative enactment and gubernatorial signing of the amended law in that direction.

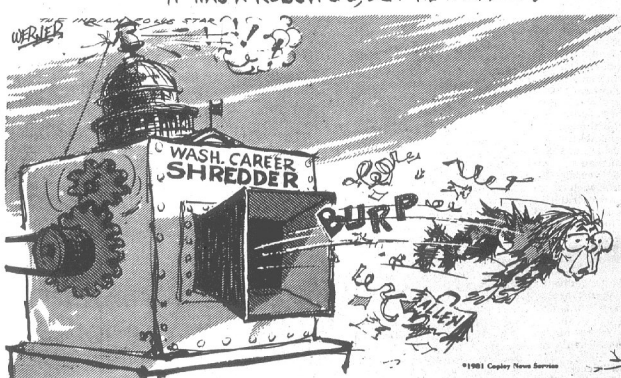

In Fahner's words, "Balance is needed between the public's right to know about public issues and the public's right to have its officials work with confidentiality in the narrowly-defined instances when that is necessary."

"This has always been the intent of the Act, and we now have provided tools of definition so the law can work more smoothly."

"For 110 years in Illinois, since the passage of a statute requiring county boards to keep the doors open for public meetings, openness in government has been public policy in our state. Yet, today, some officials believe we are taking away some privileges, some convenience, with this legislation."

If a bit of inconvenience is involved, it may be well worth it. In a democracy and a land of freedom, the public and the public business must be kept as close together as possible.

IT WAS A ROUGH GO BUT HE MADE IT!

Defends Dan Parney's name

To the Editor: I would like to say that many of us are not as 'fascinated' by the articles appearing in the Press-Record regarding Dan Parney.

I, for one, am made sick to my stomach on articles constantly telling of alleged things about Dan. He has not been proven guilty of any wrongdoing, but his name is constantly being smeared.

Dan is a fine young man. I've known him all his life. You are innocent till proven guilty, but all this is just smearing his good name and his good reputation.

I feel it is just an attempt to ruin him and I, for one, don't believe one word that is said against him. I would back him tomorrow for any office he wanted to hold.

Dan has served his country well and his county and city well. I'm proud to know him. I hope to see as many articles in relation to his service as I have seen relating the allegations about him.

Hang in there, Dan. They can't get a 'good' man down, and Dan is a good man, a good citizen and a good friend. We love you and are in your corner.

No remedy for Madison needs

To the Editor: Since the crushing defeat of the November election in Madison, Mayor Mike Sayk has offered no alternative to solving the city's financial problems.

If home rule and unlimited taxation were the mayor's only solutions to the fiscal crisis, he should step aside and allow someone else with other fiscal plans to tackle Madison's financial problems.

Invents retronym?

By GARRY N. MURPHY
University of Edwardsville

Ever heard of a "retronym"? Probably not, because I have just invented it. At least I think I have, though it is quite possible that I am remembering a term I stumbled across in print somewhere and have simply forgotten the occasion.

At any rate, a "retronym" is an awkward and unfortunately redundant expression used to bring back to us the same meaning that the older, simpler word used to convey.

The tragic history of "guitar" will illustrate. Fifty years ago, the guitar was a simple instrument of very limited popularity. Then somebody plugged it into a wall socket. Today, the electric guitar is wired for sound.

So now, when we mean just plain old "guitar," we have to resort to the retronym "acoustic guitar"—which is silly, since all musical instruments are, by definition, "acoustic."

The same kind of thing has happened to our terms for food. "Turf" meant "grassy surface" or "soil." Then came "astroturf" and other brands of artificial covering. Now, when we mean "turf," we have to say "natural turf."

The same thing, too, has happened with "journalism." Derived from the French word for "daily," "journalism" originally applied chiefly to newspapers. Today, if we want to refer to them, except for the radio, we have to say "radio news programs, we must invoke the retronym 'print journalism.'"

Trustee challenges need for a tax collector in Nameoki

To the Editor: Perhaps the best way to realize and understand the problems the township tax collector, we need to know that Nameoki Township organized in 1876. The first make-up of the township government as described by a county representative was the supervisor (also a county board member), clerk, tax collector, tax assessor, highway commissioner, justices of the peace, constable and assistant supervisor (also a county board member).

Through the years, our government has made many changes. As you know, we don't have the constable, the justice of the peace, the assistant supervisor. All the changes were done by state law.

There has been a problem with the tax collector's position for many years. The problem of payment for tax collecting costs began with the 1970 Illinois Constitution, which made no provision for the township tax collectors keeping a portion of the tax money for salaries.

Assembly passed legislation (House Bill 194) to allow counties to recover their actual collection costs. Last year, the Madison County Board, on a 21 to 5 vote, passed an ordinance for collection costs.

An attempt to have the ordinance amended to assure "reasonable credit" for townships having tax collectors was dropped after the state's attorney ruled the amendment was too vague. The attorney general has been asked and did give an opinion on the matter.

A Nameoki Township county board member commented that townships used to retain three percent of taxes to pay collectors. He said the 1970 Constitution specifically authorizes only counties to collect taxes and said with the county board's action, township collection job is eliminated, unless authorized by the county.

The county declined the request to amend the ordinance (former) Nameoki collector.

Churches welcome drinkers

To the Editor: I am happy and proud to be a member of the New Salem Baptist Church in Venice...I asked to be baptized and was on Jan. 3, 1982. I could think of no better way to start the New Year...

The pianist at the church sings with much gusto in his voice and has the gift from god to make a piano talk. His name is Reginald Fields. He has much pride and wants to share his gift of music to the world. If a job offer is in a night club fine. I told Reggie I would be there to dance to his music.

I have a steel rod in the top of my left leg from a broken hip and pins in the same leg from four broken bones, but, thanks to God, I can still dance. Not as well as I once did, but that matters not...

All Quad-City area board members voted in favor of the ordinance.

Former township attorneys have ruled, concerning the payment of the collector's salary, that the board of trustees can budget and pay the collectors, but there is no function for the collector under the present law.

According to the guide and duties of the township officials, the tax collector only functions in a very few counties and, of the 102 counties (in Illinois), only three of them fund a tax collector. One of the counties is Madison and one of the few townships in our county (funding a township tax collector) is Nameoki.

If we, the taxpayers, were not being taxed for tax collection by the county, I would be in favor of funding a local tax collector, but since I cannot change the system that was set by law, I can only use my one vote that I have on the Nameoki Board in accordance with the overburdened taxpayers.

As to the county lengthening tax cycle, Board of Review hearings, Certificates of Error, changes of assessments, delayed tax billing and collections causing cash flow problems which often force governments to issue tax anticipation warrants which are repaid with interest. I can only say the county and the township government are working very hard with the state legislators to correct the problems.

House Bill 194 is a perfect example of our efforts to speed up the program. I have attended county board meetings and have read every issue of the county board minutes for the last 10 years. I feel that I am very up-to-date on the issue. All this in mind, I sincerely find it very hard to deal with this, due to the fact that I am part of the state with (Norman Hall), the present tax collector.

The wrong is not in drinking — over indulgence is. The same as food. Why stuff in more than you need or others go hungry? That, too, is a sin. God wants us to get along together and learn to share. Abraham Lincoln said it best... "All men are created equal." That speech has always been more like a prayer to me. I learned to recite it all, in one weekend...

Press was a morale booster

(The following note appeared at the end of a change of address request from a mother on behalf of a military sailor who has been receiving the Press-Record by mail.)

Let me thank you for making it possible with your low rates for servicemen to be able to send him the paper. Last year, while he sat in the Gulf of Oman, off the Iranian coast, during the hostage crisis, he wrote home and said the paper had been passed from man to man and more used cars had been bought and traded. (I just among the crew). They kept them from going nuts. Again, thank you all.

MRS. LELA ANDERSON

Steelabrade in full production

After 2½ years of work, the new Steelabrade Corporation's Granite City metal processing line is in full production in the 100,000-square-foot area of Granite City Steel's South Works, formerly the Commonwealth Plant of General Steel Industries, according to David N. Jones, chairman of the board of Steelabrade.

"The steel building industry has long awaited the availability of a top quality pre-painted heavy-gauge coil product," Jones commented.

"After 2½ years, the Steelabrade Corporation, with a program for production with Granite City Steel, a Division of National Steel, has now produced a full sequence of necessary functions. That is descale, wash and phosphate, paint, bake and slit, ready for the cold-formed building industry equipment," he noted.

Between $1.5 and $2 million was spent in designing and equipping the modern steel processing line. The line was engineered by Steelabrade with the assistance of 12 basic equipment manufacturers, each a specialist in its own field.

Twenty-six pieces of sophisticated equipment stretch over 175 feet from the uncoiling area to the area where clean painted and processed steel is recoiled, Jones explained.

"It produces an end product that satisfies the original goal of Steelabrade. That goal was a coated product of exceptional quality at a very competitive cost. Not only does this line produce the ultimate quality, but it is consistent by the vast network of controls, whereby the operator at the main console can continually monitor all of the many functions or operations being done at the same time," he added.

Approximately 96,000 lineal feet of control wire are used in the monitoring system. In addition, all of the three operators are in constant communication through headset phones and walkie-talkie receivers.

The line can process 20-ton coils with a minimum width of 26 inches and a maximum of 48 inches. Gauges from 10 to 18 can be processed and a shear stress specification of 55,000 pounds per square inch with a finished minimum slit width of 3½ inches is possible.

Once steel is uncoiled from raw coils, most provided by Granite City Steel, it is cleaned of rust and scale by a modern centrifugal blasting wheel. The mill scale is removed by tiny steel pellets thrown by centrifugal force onto the surface, producing a better surface than the other most common cleaning method, the "pickle and oil" process, Jones noted.

"The important features of the blasted surface are two-fold. First, it is mechanical and eliminates the possibility of leaving unwanted acid or chemical residue on the surface, which is detrimental to the paint adhesion. Second, and perhaps more important, blasting produces a metal surface profile that greatly enhances the adhesion ability of the coating to be applied. It is the ultimate in metal preparation," Jones contended.

The Wheelabrator, or descaling unit in the line, has a capacity of approximately 3,500 pounds of shot being thrown every minute, which, compared to air blasting, would require 2,600 horsepower of compressor and 50 men using three-eighth-inch nozzles at 90 pounds per square inch.

"To insure that no blast carryovers, or smut, as it is sometimes called, remain after blasting, Steelabrade has provided a specially-designed hot water iron phosphate coating. This unit, using a specially-formulated product, impinges the steel surface with 1,000 pounds per square inch of force to remove the very toughest of contamination and, in turn, deposits an iron phosphate coating," Jones explained.

Immediately following the washer, a 3.6 million BTU (British Thermal Units, a unit of heat) high-impinging gas-fired preheater is used to immediately preheat the steel to an Optimal Pyrometor-controlled temperature prior to painting. The uniformity of steel temperature at this point is important to the quality and control of the paint application and the baking cycle, Jones said.

The method of coating used is a precision reverse roller coating and no voids or changes in coating thickness exist by either line speed change or actual stopping of the line while in production. "Again, the automation and controls on this line keep quality at its maximum," Jones says.

The coating or paint used in the process is of special formulation and is developed from years of research and development by the paint supplier, Jones notes. "Although it is a water-soluble paint and non-toxic, non-hazardous in use, many people are misled that being water-based, it cannot be good in quality. Factually, this is a very high-quality iron oxide aqueous organic thermoset coating, being unique in high solids and offering unparalleled flexibility when it comes to post forming," Jones explained.

From the coater, the freshly-applied paint, over a hot surface, enters a specially-designed air-circulating chamber and high intensity 3,600,000 BTU infra-red bake oven. Within a matter of seconds, the paint is baked at 450 degrees metal surface temperature, controlled by a Pyrometor Optical camera, then it goes through an excellent cooling unit which immediately drops the steel temperature to less than 160 degrees.

"At this point, and before complete thermoset of the paint, the surface is tested and will withstand a 12 to 15 MEK test," Jones said.

After slitting, the edges are hot dipped spray painted and then the steel is banded for shipment.

"Due to the extended effort in the preparation of the metal and the use of a high-quality coating, this new coating line can achieve a product that has passed and exceeded all accelerated destruction tests so far presented by the building manufacturers, with substantially less coating weights being necessary," Jones contends.

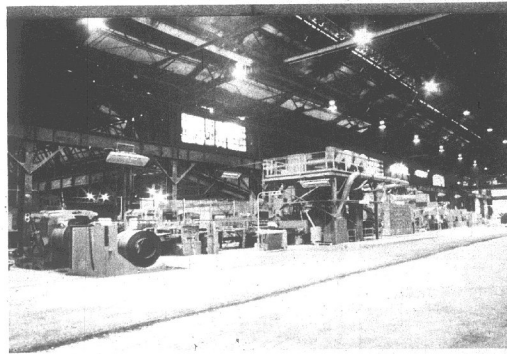

"It is a known fact that the ability of coating to protect is only as good as the surface on which it is applied and the accuracy of its curing. Steelabrade now offers that ultimate product at the lowest cost," Jones concluded.

On Sept. 30, Steelabrade's long-established Metal Sales Division was incorporated with a name change to Charter Metals, Inc.

Charter Metals specializes in the marketing of steel products and customer siting for certain customers while Steelabrade is specializing its efforts in the processing, descaling, painting and slitting of heavy-gauge HR coils.

Charter Metals operates primarily from 1603 Cleveland Blvd. while Steelabrade is headquartered at 1020 Niedringhaus Ave. The general corporate offices for both companies will remain at 1667 Mason Road, St. Louis, Mo., 63141.

No change of personnel was required in the reorganization, which was accomplished for improved efficiency and service, Jones noted.

NEW STEEL LINE. Steelabrade has put its new steel cleaning and painting line into full production in the former General Steel Industries building of Granite City Steel. The new line features the most sophisticated equipment available for processing the metal and preparing it for shipment to the buildings industry.

Chili supper at St. Mark Church

St. Mary's-St. Mark's PTAM held a monthly meeting at St. Mary's School last week to finalize plans for a chili supper to be held Saturday, Jan. 16, in St. Mark's Church basement. The chairman of the committee, Mrs. Jeanne Spiroff, announced that tickets could be purchased from members of the committee, St. Mary-St. Mark School children, or at the door.

Price of the tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children, with serving from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. Dessert and beverage is included, and carryouts are available, the chairman added.

BURGLARY PROBATION Marguerite Fischer, 19, of 1006 Washington, Madison, was placed on two-year probation in December by Probation Judge Edward Ferguson for a June 22 burglary.

'Last Tango' showings

"The Last Tango in Paris" is scheduled to be shown at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Jan. 14, 15 and 16.

The film will be presented in the DeJa Vu Room of the University Center at 2:30 p.m. on Thursday at 7 and 9:30 p.m. on Friday, and at 7 p.m. on Saturday.

Admission is $1 for SUE students and $1.50 for non-students. Tickets may be purchased at Union Station at the University Center. Directed by Bernardo Bertolucci, this film displays the escapades of Marlon Brando and Maria Schneider. Brando's performance in this movie won for him the best actor award by the New York Film Critics. The film is rated "R".

Compromise on control by state of Christian day care

Governor James R. Thompson and House Speaker George Ryan announced an agreement Thursday between the administration and representatives of Illinois Christian schools on legislative language regarding the removal of day care licensing of religious school programs.

"My administration has met several times with groups representing Christian schools," the governor said. "We have reached an agreement on language that satisfies everyone, while, at the same time, addresses the concerns I have in assuring that children continue to be protected by the state."

House Speaker Ryan held a number of meetings with the groups that led to the agreement.

Thompson last summer vetoed Senate Bill 894, which was intended to exempt Christian schools from Department of Children and Family Services day care licensing by exempting "programs which operate as an integral part of the local church ministry."

In his veto, the governor expressed a number of concerns, including health and fire safety, the difficulty of the state defining a "local church ministry," and the possibility of unscrupulous individuals claiming a "ministry status" and operating poor quality day care programs.

Under the new language, to be introduced in the spring legislative session, exemptions would be granted to programs or portions of programs that serve children of 3 years or older. It also would require that programs be operated by churches or religious institutions as defined by the Internal Revenue Code receive no government aid.

operate as part of a religious, non-profit, elementary school and meet state or local health and fire standards.

"This language retains the provision that these Christian school programs must meet health and fire safety regulations while, at the same time, avoids putting the state in the position of having to determine what constitutes a legitimate religion or local church ministry," Thompson added.

Representing the Christian schools in the discussions were the Rev. George Zarris of Illinois Moral Majority; the Rev. Don Lyon of Accelerated Christian Education, the Rev. Arno Weniger of the Illinois Association of Christian Schools, the Rev. Gerald Carlson of the American Association of Christian Schools, and the Rev. Frank Bumpus and the Rev. Dan Sweet, both of the Illinois Christian Action Network in Schaumburg, Ill.

The agreement was sought after Thompson's veto of Senate Bill 894, which was intended to exempt Christian schools from Department of Children and Family Services day care licensing. Speaker Ryan initiated the discussion which led to the compromise. He brought the school officials together with Director Carol of DCFS and interested legislators so that their discussion would be coordinated with the administration.

"I believe the legislation we will introduce this spring," Ryan said, meets the governor's concerns, particularly as they related to having the state define what constitutes a legitimate religion, but also meets the objectives of the Illinois Christian schools."

The governor, speaker and representatives of the Christian schools agreed that the proposed legislation will stand an excellent chance of passage in the spring session.

BAC play tonight

The play, "Nobody Likes Mordacious" will be presented by the Belleville Area College Children's Theatre Company at 7:30 tonight in the college theatre.

The presentation of the play, written and directed by Jack Stokes, is part of a two-week tour by the theatre company of area grade schools.

Cast members include BAC students. Costumes were prepared by Nancy Webb of Mascoutah.

Mr. and Mrs. Relleke to mark anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Relleke, Rural Route One, Granite City, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary at an open house reception on Sunday, Jan. 17, at St. John United Church of Christ, 2901 Namecki Road. Guests will be received from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall, of the church.

Hosting the social event will be their children, Mr. and Mrs. John Relleke and Miss Janet Relleke, all of Granite City.

Mr. Relleke and his wife, the former Emma Hanfelder, were married on Jan.

16, 1932, at St. John United Church of Christ with the Rev. Paul E. Schoppe officiating.

They are lifelong residents of the area and attended Granite City schools. They also are lifelong members of the church.

Mr. Relleke owned and operated a farm in the Sand Prairie area until he retired in 1975.

Following the reception, the honorees will attend a dinner in their honor at the Holiday Inn in Edwardsville, with relatives and close friends, accompanied to a family spokesman.

Elderly require eye examinations

"While healthy eyes will last a lifetime, nearly all Americans over 65 have vision problems that need professional care," reports Dr. Jim McQuiston, a Highland optometrist and spokesperson for the Illinois Optometric Association (IOA).

He points out that "some of the problems are due to the natural aging process while others are the result of diseases that require immediate care."

A common vision impairment is presbyopia, the gradual loss of the eyes' ability to focus sharply on near objects. Millions of Americans in their forties find vision at their normal reading distance beginning to blur. When reading difficulty reaches a certain point, deterioration seems to become more noticeable and rapid.

Presbyopia is treated by doctors of optometry in a number of ways. Most individuals need some type of corrective lenses once they reach their sixties. Regular bifocals have one prescription for reading and another for distance viewing. No-line bifocals change gradually from reading distance to far distance. Trifocals have prescriptions for near, intermediate, and far distance.

"While presbyopia occurs naturally as we get older, older adults must be aware of eye diseases like glaucoma and cataracts," advises Dr. McQuiston.

Glaucoma may not become apparent to its victim until it has already done serious damage. This disorder is characterized by an increase of fluid pressure in the eye. If not detected and treated early, glaucoma may cause blindness.

Symptoms of glaucoma include periodic blurred vision, seeing colored rings around lights, loss of peripheral vision, difficulty in focusing on close-by objects.

jects and pain or redness in the eyes.

Yearly eye examinations by a doctor of optometry improve the chances of early detection. The doctor will administer a tonometry test, a quick, painless check of eye pressure and examine eyes internally. A visual field examination test might also be given. Although cataracts cannot be prevented, early detection and treatment can control eye damage and loss of sight.

A cataract is another eye disorder that can be detected long before a patient experiences any symptoms. It is the clouding or opaqueness of the clear lens of the eye. This distorts the light entering the eye, causing blurred vision. Individuals past age 55 are most likely to develop cataracts.

Glaucoma, cataracts can cause blindness if not treated. A yearly eye examination is necessary for detecting cataracts because only very advanced cases are visible to the naked eye. If detected early, glaucoma can be used to maintain adequate vision until the time when surgery may be required. After surgery, a doctor of optometry can help patients regain clear sight by prescribing glasses or contact lenses.

Other vision problems may occur with age such as retinal degeneration and disorders caused by hypertension and diabetes.

Because of advances in optometric examination procedures and treatment in medical science in general, the IOA finds that vision problems that once appeared to be insurmountable can now be treated successfully. Because vision disorders caused by aging are common, periodic professional optometric care is essential in preventing these problems from becoming major visual handicaps.

"While presbyopia occurs naturally as we get older, older adults must be aware of eye diseases like glaucoma and cataracts," advises Dr. McQuiston.

Glaucoma may not become apparent to its victim until it has already done serious damage. This disorder is characterized by an increase of fluid pressure in the eye. If not detected and treated early, glaucoma may cause blindness.

Symptoms of glaucoma include periodic blurred vision, seeing colored rings around lights, loss of peripheral vision, difficulty in focusing on close-by objects.

Deputies resign over allegations by three former female inmates

Two Madison County sheriff's deputies, one from Namecki Township and the other from Edwardsville, resigned Friday in the midst of an investigation into alleged sexual abuses in the female prisoner section of the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville, the Press-Record has learned.

Sherrill E. Toffant confirmed that resignations were received Friday from the two, one having more than five years with the department and the other having been a deputy for more than two years.

Toffant said he became aware Thursday of allegations by former female prisoners that the two had become "overly friendly" while they were filling in for female employees at the jail, following the CETA cutback of female jailers.

In a prepared statement, the department confirmed that Toffant "is investigating alleged sexual abuses in the female prisoner section of the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville, the Press-Record has learned."

Three female inmates no longer held in the jail have complained that male jailers have been over-zealous in looking at them during inspection rounds of the jail. These alleged incidents occurred during September, when insufficient female personnel were employed by the jail, following CETA employee cuts.

"Additional female staff has been added and male jailers no longer conduct inspection rounds in the female cellblock."

"The investigation is continuing to determine if physical conduct or a felony criminal offense has occurred. If it is determined that such conduct has occurred, criminal charges may be filed," the prepared statement continued.

The investigation focus is on only two jailers, although many have been interviewed during the last few days, along with several former inmates, "it concluded."

A spokesman also said that Sheriff Toffant became aware of these complaints on Thursday, Jan. 7. In the wake of the investigation, two jailers resigned under the threat that if the allegations were found to be true, they would be fired.

Dialogue for senior citizens in January

Programs in January at the Dialogue for Senior Citizens at SIUE will include a look at dental changes due to aging, a personal story of escape from Nazi Germany and a closer look at Soviet Communism.

The series, sponsored by the Gerontology Program at SIUE, meets each Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in the Mississippi-Illinois Room of the University Center. Admission is free.

Dr. Richard Coy, assistant dean of clinical affairs at the SIUE School of Dental Medicine, will discuss effects of aging on teeth and gums Jan. 13. He will also give tips on dental care and explain what the dentist looks for in a typical mouth examination.

On Jan. 20, Paul Guenther will describe his adventures and escape from Nazi-controlled Austria in 1938. He is now chairman of the department of foreign languages and literature at SIUE.

Kamil Winter, former host of a Czechoslovakian television news and public affairs programs at the time of the Soviet invasion in 1968, will discuss Soviet broadcasts during the first week of the Soviet occupation, informing the world about Soviet activities.

He will discuss basic principles of the Soviet system and its effects on everyday life of the people, and will give an assessment of its threat.

On Jan. 27, Peter Guenther will describe his adventures and escape from Nazi-controlled Austria in 1938. He is now chairman of the department of foreign languages and literature at SIUE.

Time to end Department of Energy's miseries is now

(editorial)
(Washington Bureau)

Members of Congress who voted to create a new Department of Energy in 1977 have since learned how Dr. Frankenstein felt when his monster broke out of the lab. President Reagan's proposal to abolish the department should be greeted with relief in Capitol Hill. It is time to put DOE out of its misery.

Former President Carter was barely in office when he called for creation of the department so a single federal agency would have "the broad authority to deal with our energy problems in a comprehensive way." Congress responded with alacrity, but the DOE began dealing with its mission in ways that were not so much comprehensive as incomprehensible.

By last January a new President dedicated to dismantling the department was entering office, and most members of Congress were willing to admit they had made a mistake. A congressional poll conducted by Forbes magazine in January asked senators and representatives to name the bureaucracy they considered the most inefficient or ineffective on the Washington scene. The Energy Department won hands down.

The waste and mischief of the DOE have been well chronicled, including its role in turning a modest disruption in oil supplies after the Iranian revolution into serious shortages of gasoline in some parts of the country. That fiasco, more than the department's sloppy administration of grant and subsidy programs, sealed its fate.

Mr. Reagan's decision to accelerate the decontrol of oil prices, one of his first acts as President, probably did more to improve the nation's energy inventory than the reams of directives and regulations that came out of DOE during the last four years. The new administration's energy policy is to let our energy industries do their thing in a free marketplace with a minimum of advice or interference by the government.

The question now is how to disperse those federal energy activities worth saving into existing government agencies. The administration proposes to lodge most of them in the Commerce Department, which makes sense in most instances, we are disappointed, however, that Mr. Reagan wants to give that department responsibility for the development and manufacture of nuclear weapons.

The nuclear weapons program was inherited by DOE from the old Atomic Energy Commission, which had overseen it from the beginning on the theory that it should be under civilian rather than military control. That weapons lab was an awkward fit in DOE, and will be an even more awkward fit in the Commerce Department.

There is a bona fide reason why the Defense Department, under its civilian secretary, cannot be entrusted with the research, development, and fabrication of nuclear weapons? The forthcoming congressional debate on how to dismantle the Energy Department offers an opportunity for a new debate on the philosophical and practical aspects of that issue.

Six Flags taking job applications

Six Flags Over Mid-America is accepting applications to fill 2,500 seasonal host and backstage positions at the 200-acre theme park for the 1982 season scheduled to open April 1. Job opportunities are available in shops, restaurants and ride operations.

Applicants must be at least 16 years old and possess a Social Security number. As the largest single location employer of high school and college students in the St. Louis area, Six Flags offers a variety of advancement opportunities and shows how to use a job at the park toward various career goals.

Hosts and hostesses enjoy a wide variety of summer-long social activities. Park events include softball tournaments, first-run movies, trips to sister parks and others.

Beginning today, applications will be accepted at the Six Flags Personnel Office in the park located at 144 and Six Flags-Alton Road. The Personnel Office is open Mondays through Fridays from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. through May 29.

Additional information is available by calling 1-314-938-5300 during regular business hours.

BRIMBERRY SAID TO HAVE PHONED PARTNEY

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said yesterday Thomas R. Brimberry, key figure in the Six & Co. brokerage collapse, telephoned Daniel Partney of Granite City Jan. 4 and indicated he was trying to embarrass Partney with talk of a mayoral campaign contribution, as a way of pressuring Partney in a pending court appeal.

The article quoted Partney as saying Brimberry told of being in a northern skiing area, and of having plans to later reside in the Caribbean area, where he would buy a yacht. Brimberry, facing a tax felony case, was said to have predicted he would "have plenty of money after all this is over."

THEFT OF $1,950 AT HOSPITAL

Foster home is sought for abused child

Twelve-year-old Donald, the oldest of six children, hopes one day to be reunited with his parents. Removed from his home because of parental abuse, he became a ward of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and has been in foster care since August.

Described by his social worker as polite and helpful, Donald enjoys doing chores around the house and working with mechanical gadgets.

As the oldest child, Donald is used to taking care of his younger brothers and sisters and likes the company of younger children as well as his own age group. Although he had very little money this Christmas, Donald bought presents for his brothers and sisters.

While he is not considered a behavior problem, the department has had difficulty finding a foster home for Donald because of his age, according to Pat Stillion, home-finding worker in the department's Granite City field office.

A tall, attractive boy with dark hair, Donald tries hard to please adults and is expected to do well with flexible foster parents who are able to act and maintain common-sense rules.

All department foster parents are oriented and trained. After submitting references, undergoing a criminal background check, having several interviews with department social workers and submitting medical exam information, new foster parents are ready to attend training sessions and to accept children.

Traditional foster parents receive a board fee from $171 per month for an infant to $212 per month for a teenager and may turn down any child referred to them for placement.

Such refusals are considered by the department to be in the child's best interest if a foster family does not believe a certain child would do well in its home.

Additional special fees up to $200 per month are available and all medical, dental and pharmaceutical expenses for foster children are also paid for by the state.

Area residents interested in providing a home for Donald or in learning more about foster home programs may call Shirley Faber at 878-8885.

CRIMINAL DAMAGE TO PROPERTY

Tammy Tipton, 2604 Kirkpatrick Homes, reported at 3:30 p.m. Friday that an unknown person pounded on her door at 11:30 on Thursday night and later apparently fired a shotgun at the door. According to police reports, there was a pellet pattern found on the door and powder residue.

She said she was awakened by the noise and when she looked out the upstairs bedroom window, noted a young male getting into a silver gray Camaro with Missouri license plates. There were three other occupants in the vehicle, she said. While checking with area residents, the police were told by another woman, Janet Womack, 2603 Kirkpatrick Homes, that the window in her back door had been broken in a prior incident, but she did not see anyone leaving the area.

Arrest three after incident

Two men and a juvenile, all from Granite City, were arrested at 9:55 p.m. Saturday, following a disturbance in the parking area at Brunswick Tri-Mor Bowl, 3701 Nameoki Road, in which a St. Louis man allegedly was beaten.

Timothy B. Rowane, 17, of 1938 Benton St., was booked on two charges of assault, resisting arrest, criminal damage to property and battery; and Ritchie A. Grady, 18, of 2940 Marshall Ave., and a 16-year-old juvenile, both were charged with battery.

The arrests came about when officers arriving at the scene halted an auto leaving the lot in which the three men and a fourth man, who were not charged, were riding.

James A. Gardner Jr., St. Louis, alleged the men had mocked him and other patrons, the bowling alley, used foul language and followed him outside when he tried to leave. The three then tried to leave in an auto.

At police headquarters, Rowane allegedly grabbed and tore an officer's shirt and attempted to strike him. He refused to give information and made threats toward the officer.

Rowane allegedly became violent again while being led to the cell block and tried to strike another officer.

He declined medical attention and was released at 1 a.m. Sunday on payment of $510 cash bond. Grady was released on payment of $102 cash bond and the juvenile paid a $35 cash bond and was released.

The St. Louis man went to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for treatment, police said.

First-time home buyers succeeding?

Although it has not been an easy time to fulfill the American dream of home ownership, many first-time home buyers have managed to make the transition from renter to owner, according to a survey conducted by the National Association of Realtors.

"First-time buyers comprised 44 percent of the home buying market during late summer and early fall in 14 metropolitan areas," said Dr. Jack Calson, chief economist of the association.

Relatively high interest rates and high home prices prevailed in many areas at the time of the survey. However, moderate and middle income households were still able to participate in the home buying market.

"The median household income of buyers responding to the survey was $23,100, substantially higher than the U.S. median of $17,650," he said. "About one quarter of the buyers responding had incomes of less than $25,000."

In the areas surveyed, the median price of a home was $70,000. Median prices ranged from a high of $124,000 in San Francisco to a low of $48,900 in Tampa-St. Petersburg.

Most home buyers were married couples, the majority with dependents living at home; but 21 percent were single, indicating the growing importance of this category in the market. Detached single-family homes were still the most popular choice of housing by a wide margin.

Plan Commission meeting cancelled

The Granite City Plan Commission meeting which had been scheduled for Thursday will not be held due to lack of business.

JAMES HICKMAN has graduated from the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary with a Doctor of Theology degree. Rev. Hickman, a Granite City native, is pastor of Dawn Baptist Church in Dawn, Tex. He is the son of Mrs. Lyman Hickman of Farmington, Mo., and is married to the former Patricia Riggins.

GC Appeal Board meeting cancelled

The Granite City Board of Appeals meeting scheduled for Wednesday has been cancelled due to lack of business.

ACCIDENT INJURY

A stalled auto on the Interstate 270 bridge over the Chain of Rocks Canal Thursday morning resulted in a chain-reaction accident involving four other cars and one person injured.

According to a State Police report, a disabled vehicle with blinkers on was stalled in the left lane and three other cars had stopped when a fifth auto of Odell E. Oberbeck, 60, of Caseyville, struck the fourth car, starting a chain reaction. Nancy Wargin, 28, of Florissant, Mo., was in the fifth car and received injuries. She was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center where she was treated and released.

POLICE HALT CAR, DRIVER CHARGED

After police stopped a vehicle in the 1800 block of Cleveland Boulevard at 12:50 a.m. Friday, they arrested the driver, John D. Moody, 19, of 2158 Edison Ave., charging him with illegal transportation of alcohol and two stop sign violations.

Officers alleged finding an open 12-pack container of beer on the vehicle's rear floorboard and an open can of beer under a seat. Moody posted his driver's license pending a Feb. 19 hearing.

Hollywood Strip

Everyone wants in the act

By ALAN L. GANSBERG

HOLLYWOOD — Although the networks will surely never lack for star faces, many big-name performers have made the move into cable and pay TV, signing on to do dramas, musicals and concerts in larger numbers than ever before.

Among the top names trying to gain a foothold in the new medium are FAYE DUNAWAY, DICK VAN DYKE and KEN HOWARD, who will star in Showtime's version of "The Country Girl," the award-winning Broadway play that won GRACE KELLY her Academy Award when it was turned into a movie.

Van Dyke portrays an actor who is losing his battle with the bottle while his career falters. Dunaway will be his wife, torn between her own needs and attempting to support her husband.

For Dunaway, this is not her first foray into TV. She starred as "Evita Peron" last season on NBC. But like many performers, she's discovered that pay TV may offer her roles in classic and popular American plays that the networks fear may not attract an audience.

Similarly, SCOTT BAIO of ABC's "Happy Days" has agreed to portray the lead in "Gemini," also a Broadway hit. And MADELINE KAHN, CLORIS LEACHMAN, DON RICKLES, and DON ADAMS also are set for upcoming shows.

Not to be outdone Home

Box Office (HBO), Showtime's larger competitor, has made its own big-name deals. RICHARD HARRIS will re-create King Arthur in "Camelot" for the pay service, while RICHARD THOMAS, BESS ARMSTRONG and BARBARA BARRIE are ready to do their version of NEIL SIMON's "Barefoot in the Park."

Plus, SHELLEY WINTERS has agreed to star in "Table Settings," an offbeat comedy.

The list goes on. PETER STRAUSS is making appearances on ARTS, the service of Hearst-ABC. RITA MORENO is appearing in the CBS Cable presentation of "Working" and is also planning to work on Bravo, the service from Playboy.

America is still waiting to get fully wired to the new technologies, but the stars of film, stage and TV are already jumping on the bandwagon.

Which is not to say the networks will be outdone. WILLIAM SHATNER has been tagged to star in a new police series for ABC entitled "Hooker." Shatner will portray a police sergeant who is described as "a dinosaur in his belief that the law is the law." ADRIAN ZMED also stars.

LINDA RONSTADT will make her film debut in "Pirates of Penzance," recreating the role she had on Broadway. REX SMITH, KEVIN CLINE and GEORGE ROSE have also followed from Broadway and ANGELA LANS-

BURY has joined the cast.

EILEEN BRENNAN of CBS's "Private Benjamin" series thinks that schoolchildren should be taught a sense of humor along with their reading, writing and 'rithmetic.

In a rare public appearance, she remarked, "I'm talking about teaching kids to see the humor in the human condition, because it can be a drag, comically speaking, and one of the reasons that's so is because we're all so damned serious about it."

Brennan hopes her series brings a few laughs each week, too.

ROBERT CULP has finally gotten the chance he's asked for. He'll be directing an episode of "The Greatest American Hero," the ABC series on which he stars with WILLIAM KATT.

Culp loves to direct and he's been badgering the producers to give him a chance since the series premiered. The episode he's been given is entitled "Lilacs, Mr. Maxwell," and will air in February.

His big brother is back on TV with "McClain's Law," and now PETER GRAVES will be back on the small screen as host of the upcoming TV special, "Discover: The World of Science."

Both Peter and brother JAMES ARNESS laugh about the time Jim greeted him as he arrived in Hollywood on a bus and told Peter to go back home. Things worked out after all.
